Townsfolk to Ask Dismissal of Weekley Case

After another hectic morning at Butler, where pupils staging a protest over the suspension of Superintendent Willard S. Weekley carried their "strike" into its second day and barred Weekley's successor from the school building, the entire controversy was moved to Mansfield, and Butler residents become more active than ever in it.

Developments came with lightning-like rapidity, with the climax coming as Butler residents prepared to demand dismissal of the charges against Weekley.

Jamming into the Richland county courthouse here, some 200 strong after County Superintendent Boyd W. Robinson summoned Butler school board members to meet with him here "to clear up this situation," they elected a spokesman who said he would demand that the Butler board reverse its suspension order against Weekley.

After seeing the size of the crowd, Robinson said an open hearing would be held in common pleas courtroom.

The crowd's spokesman was Earl Ward, tall former school teacher and now a farmer.

He was elected at an impromptu meeting of the 200 Butler residents, held in the corridors of the courthouse. He has a daughter and an adopted son attending Butler schools, and another son graduated last year.

Ward, who said he spoke "for the townsfolk and the feeling in the community," asserted he would demand that the "board dismiss its charges without prejudice and reinstate Weekley."

Many of those in the crowd said they were parents of pupils—some had even brought their children with them, but the great majority of those present were adults.

They discussed the situation in groups as they awaited the arrival of the board members.

Only a few pupils, in the lower grades, and some teachers entered the Butler school this morning, the older pupils continuing to picket it, carrying signs that read "We Want Weekley," and asserting they would not return to classes until he was reinstated.

Two board members — Ivan Gower and Wade Forbes—had arrived on the scene and decided to hold a special board meeting as soon as a necessary third member could be located. They asked Sheriff Frank E. Robinson, who was also on the scene, to find Board Member K. R. Morgan.

"This can't go on," Forbes said, "we're going to have to get these children back to their classes."

A number of adults had also gathered outside the school building to watch the picketing, but there were no instances of violence such as marked the start of the "strike" last Friday when two board members—Morgan and Rupert Roberts—reported they had been beaten by adults.

In the meantime, Superintendent

Bromfield Says Co-Ops Help Preserve Democracy.

Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield believes that additional cooperatives will be established during the war and the movement strengthened after hostilities cease.

"If the United States can preserve democracy and stay as far away as possible from bureaucracy, we will be better off," Bromfield last night told representatives of Ohio co-operatives meeting in Columbus to study development of co-op consumer goods distribution.

"The co-op offers a solution of how to help preserve democracy, and has a great future with the farmer, the unionist, and the person in the small income bracket," added Bromfield, who farms more than 300 acres near Lucas.

INVITES UNIONS

O. S. U. President Sends Call For 'Labor In War' Conference.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Dr. Howard L. Bevis, president of Ohio State university, today invited all local labor unions in Ohio to participate in a "labor in the war" conference here Feb. 28 and March 1.

"We realize that this, more than any other war in history, is a war of production," he said in a letter.

IT'S COLONEL NOW

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's selective service head ranks as a full colonel today. Announcement of Col. C. W. Goble's temporary advancement from lieutenant colonel was made over the week-end. He is a veteran of the first World war.

GAME FARM HEAD RETIRES

COLUMBUS — (AP) — T. M. Nash, who has raised more than half a million pheasants for Ohio, has retired after more than 25 years as supervisor of the Urbana and Wellington state game farms.

REGISTRATION FOR DRAFT TO BE NEAR 6,000

20 to 45 Age Group Prepares To Register This Week; Nine Questions To Be Asked.

Richland county's draft registration machinery will go into operation this week-end for the third time in 16 months as an estimated 6,000 men sign up for possible service in Uncle Sam's army and the vast war production system. More than 10,000 are already registered in the county.

The registration this time will be spread over three days, beginning at noon Saturday. Men from 20 to 45 will register at 20 places designated by the three county draft boards.

The third registration and the first since the United States entered the war will cover a wider age range than either of the two preceding registrations. State draft officials said it will complete the registration of the potential military manpower since present plans do not call for the use of men over 45 as soldiers.

Scores of Richland countians who fought in the first World war will register again this time and some of them may get the chance to fight the Germans again.

To avoid confusion that a one-day registration might cause and for the convenience of the men who will be working all day Monday, the registration places will be open Saturday and Sunday afternoons, Feb. 14 and 15, and all day the following Monday.

The actual registration process will require only a few minutes for each registrant. Nine questions will be asked and then a registration certificate will be issued to each man. The certificate must be carried by the registrant so he can show it if he is questioned by a law enforcement officer or draft official.

These are the questions that must be answered at the registra-

FDR Names Land Czar Of American Wartime Shipping

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt today named Admiral Emory S. Land as wartime shipping czar with complete and final control over the operation of all American shipping.

Admiral Land, who at present is chairman of the U. S. maritime commission, will head the ship supply board recently created by the president to function with a like British set-up.

By executive order, the president established a "war shipping administration," named Land as administrator and charged him with securing "the most effective utilization of shipping in the prosecution of the war."

Under the president's order, the decisions of Land "shall be final."

He is specifically directed to "control the operation, purchase, charter, requisition, and use of all ocean vessels under the flag or control of the United States" except combat vessels of the army, navy and coast guard and vessels engaged in coastwise, intercoastal and inland transportation.

City Yawns In Darkness But Gets to Work On Schedule as 'War Time' Takes Effect

Mansfield may have yawned a bit this morning and complained about the darkness, but the city and the rest of the state generally went to work on schedule under the new war time and reported little confusion.

The time changed officially at 2 a. m. today, but most Mansfielders turned their clocks and watches ahead an hour before they went to bed last night so they wouldn't forget to get up with the rest of the city this morning.

Some of the city's residents who hated to think of going to bed earlier and getting up an hour earlier this morning turned their timepieces ahead Sunday afternoon so they would be accustomed to the change before bedtime.

Industrial plants, stores, and schools in the city reported no trouble under the new time today. Factory shifts and store employes started at the usual time, but of course it was still an hour earlier in the day, according to the sun.

The city's public schools started a half hour later by the clock but actually a half hour earlier by eastern standard time. Supt. W. L. Miller said there was no confusion. Most city schools started at 9. a. m., while St. Peter's parochial opened at 8 as usual.

Two pupils in Madison high school forgot the change, however, and arrived nearly an hour late, Supt. Olan La Rue said. They were exceptions and there was little trouble otherwise, he added.

Shopping For War Products

The defense market came to Mansfield on wheels today in two large "war-parts-wanted" trailers which carried samples of vitally-needed defense parts and engineers who interviewed industrial representatives hoping to adapt their plants for war work. In the upper picture, the two trailers are shown parked in front of the Mansfield-Leland hotel where the interviews took place. Below, a group of manufacturers and civilian defense authorities gather inside one of the trailers to hear one of the Navy representatives explain the need the Navy has for one of the hundreds of parts displayed.

Scores Look Over Trailers At 'War Parts Wanted' Stop

Scores of representatives from industries in the Mansfield area registered early today and inspected a "war-parts-wanted" truck caravan stopping in Mansfield to display equipment and machine parts needed in the war program.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager, of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, said that 125 industrial plants had been invited to send representatives with data on their production facilities and that between 150 and 200 engineers and superintendents were expected here during the day.

Two large trailer trucks, which had been kept under guard during the night at the armory, parked in front of the Mansfield-Leland hotel early morning for the first of 25 stops to be made in Ohio.

Mansfield manufacturers and others from this vicinity have been urged to visit the caravan up until 5 p. m., today to see if their plants can take on sub-contracts for the production of any of these wartime products.

One truck displayed samples of ordnance parts for the navy, while a second contained parts wanted by contractors in the manufacture of war materials.

"By inspecting the trucks and talking to field engineers and other officers aboard," said Routt-

WOMAN KILLS 2

Resort Operator Held After Canton Shooting.

CANTON —(INS)— Police today sifted details of an argument in a Canton resort which resulted in the fatal shooting of Nicholas Rossetti, 25, and Armando Gonzales Vega, 27, and the arrest of Sadie Cook, 42, operator of the resort, and Frank Bruell, 29.

The Cook woman was held on a charge of homicide, Bruell on suspicion. Two other women were held as witnesses.

Detective Capt. John D. Beatty said Rosseti and Vega, both Republic Steel corporation employes, were killed by one bullet fired from a 30-40 rifle in the hands of the Cook woman while she stood in the doorway of her place as the victims and five other men were leaving after an argument.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Now they would remove the sugar bowl from Ohio's restaurant tables and lunch counters.

To help conserve the sugar supply, the Ohio State Restaurant association recommended today that its members ration sugar to customers in one of four ways:

1) Distribute sugar in paper envelopes; 2) serve cube sugar; 3) put sugar in coffee when it is poured; 4) have waitress serve sugar to the customer at the table.

TRAFFIC KILLS 3 NEAR CITY; 22 DIE IN OHIO

Crawford County Has Heavy Toll; Three Die In Crossing Accident.

Accidents on streets and highways made hazardous by heavy ice and snow today had claimed the lives of three persons in the Mansfield area over the week-end which saw 22 others die in Ohio traffic accidents.

All of the fatalities in this area occurred late Saturday and early yesterday in Crawford county. State highway patrolmen said that slippery roads was the big reason for the accidents but that worn tires were responsible for at least one of the deaths.

Those dead were:

Howard Sauer, 40, of Ashland, who met death when the car in which he was riding crashed into a highway cinder truck on U. S. Rouse 30-S near Galion.

O. W. Benjamin, 34, of Dayton, who was fatally injured when his automobile skidded into a tree on State Route 4 near the Galion city limits.

Thomas Morgan, 35, of Homestead, Pa., who was killed in a collision of an auto and a telephone truck west of Bucyrus.

Sauer was killed shortly after midnight when a car driven by Harry Parsons, 32, of Ashland, struck the rear of a highway truck in Crawford county near the Crawford-Richland county line. Parsons is being held for investigation.

State highway patrolmen said that Parsons' auto crashed into the rear of a highway truck while it had stopped to change its cinder spreader to another truck. John Lehman, Bucyrus, said that Parsons' auto almost struck him and then swerved into the truck, spun around and landed in a field.

O. R. Kackley, Crawford county corner, said that Sauer died from a punctured lung and a severed blood vessel. Parson was uninjured but John Van Way, Ashland, and his two daughters,

WATER PURE

State Health Head Reports on Millersburg Supply.

Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director, asserted at Columbus today that a sample of the Millersburg water supply, suspected of being contaminated, was "exceptionally good water and showed no chemical traces" in tests at the state laboratory.

The sample was submitted by Dr. A. J. Earney, Holmes county health commissioner, after a man with a flashlight was reported seen atop the 50,000 gallon water tank reservoir Friday night.

Dr. Earney ordered the tank drained and the water tested as a precaution. He also advised Millersburg residents to boil their water before using.

Much of the Millersburg water supply comes from an underground reservoir in another part of town, Dr. Markwith said, but there was no reason to suspect tampering there.

Much Too Early!

This business of getting up in the dark and going to the office by war time is all new to Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer who arrived at the courthouse at 8 a. m. today looking like this. The News-Journal photographer snapped the picture as the judge entered his office wearing his nightshirt and house slippers and carrying a big candle. It was all in fun, of course, and the judge's comic entry created considerable amusement among county workers.

FDR SIGNS HUGE NAVY MEASURE

26½ Billion Dollar Supply Bill Largest In Any Nation's History.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt today signed the $26,495,265,474 (B) naval supply bill —largest single appropriation measure in any nation's history — designed to assure American supremacy on the seas and in the air.

The bill, plus net appropriations in bills now pending in congress, brings to $116,000,000,000 the total of war funds authorized since inauguration of the defense program in June, 1940, according to a war production board compilation.

It estimated actual expenditures through January at $17,528,000,000.

The navy measure, passed in congress without a dissenting vote, provides funds for adding 25,063 airplanes to the fleet air arm and for speeding construction of fighting ships ranging from torpedo boats to battleships.

Sentence Places Husband In Jail For 18 Week-ends

Harold Schonauer, 25, of 238½ North Main street, must spend his next 18 week-ends in the county jail for fighting with his wife last Friday.

The sentence was imposed by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch after Schonauer's wife, Estella, filed charges of assault and battery.

To permit Schoenauer to continue working, Judge Kalbfleisch made the week-end provision. Schoenauer is required to report at the jail early Saturday and stay until Monday morning.

The sentence adds up to 30 days and $8.55 court costs. Fifty days of an original 80-day sentence were suspended by the court. Deputy sheriffs pointed out that Schoenauer can shorten his sentence to 15 week-ends if he pays the costs in cash instead of serving them out.

Land on Coast, Move Inland In Severe Fighting

Australian Commander At Fortress Reports Situation Well In Hand But Holds Out Slight Hope For Dislodging Enemy.

(By Associated Press)

SINGAPORE—Strong Japanese forces landed during the night on the northwest coast of Singapore island and are spreading eastward in heavy fighting, British headquarters announced today.

British imperial forces are endeavoring to "mop up the enemy," said a communique, but the results of the action are not yet known.

Major General Henry Gordon Bennett, commander of the Australians at Singapore, declared that the situation on the beleaguered and invaded island now is "well in hand."

"We have taken our stand on a strong line and are organizing an attack which it is hoped will recover as much as possible of the lost terrain," Bennett said, thus holding out but slim hope that the Japanese could be readily dislodged.

The strong Japanese landing had turned Singapore's ordeal of shellfire and bombs in the past week of siege from the opposite shore of Johore strait into a man to man, weapon to weapon struggle.

The Japanese declared that their beach heads were so well consolidated that tanks already had been ferried across to bolster their shock troops.

Japanese batteries on the Malayan mainland and Japanese dive-bombers, meanwhile, subjected British advance positions to a heavy bombardment. At the same time Japanese air raiders appeared over Singapore city, on the south side of the island, but were met by British fighters, which battled them successfully.

The Japanese landing was effected from boats between 11 p. m. last night (11 a. m. EST Sunday) and 1 a. m. today, under cover of an intense artillery barrage, between Sungei Kranji and Pasir Laba, west of the narrow causeway which formerly linked Singapore with the Malayan mainland.

"Our forward troops were pushed back in some places and there has been some enemy infiltration eastwards," the communique acknowledged.

There were no indications of attempted invasion thrusts elsewhere along Johore strait, but the British said that Japanese bombers and fighters had been pounding their defenses everywhere since daybreak.

British Hurricane fighters roared aloft to intercept the Japanese planes and were reported officially to have scored their biggest day's bag of the war over the beleaguered island.

Advices from the front said that Australian troops were holding the sector where the Japanese effected their landings and were reported to be bearing the brunt of the fighting, but British, Scottish, Indian troops and Chinese volunteers were said to be lending a hand.

(The Tokyo radio reported that Japanese tanks as well as infantry had been landed on Singapore island and said the Japanese forces were consolidating their positions under heavy fire.)

The section of the coast which the Japanese selected for the invasion thrust is bordered by tangled mangrove swamps and rubber estates and is defended by a series of swiftly constructed positions protected in the most

AGAIN: Defenders Repulse New Attack On Manila By Japs

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—General MacArthur reported today his troops on Batan peninsula in the Philippines repulsed new attacks by the Japanese while the Manila bay fortifications silenced several enemy big gun siege batteries on the Cavite shore.

A war department communique said heavy infantry fighting had occurred at several points on the peninsula with hostile dive bombers active overhead, but all attacks were repulsed by the American-Filipino defenders.

In the duel between the Corregidor string of fortifications at the entrance to Manila bay and the hidden Japanese guns which have been bombarding the forts for several days, the fort's guns scored several direct hits on enemy batteries.

Yesterday General MacArthur had reported:

"Fighting is increasing in intensity on our left."

This and today's communiques indicated that the new Japanese offensive was developing in the Philippines.

Synchronized with the renewed heavy pressure on the Batan front was the systematic bombardment of the American forts which still bar the entrance of Manila bay to Japanese naval forces.

Enemy land batteries, firing methodically every four minutes, threw big shells for the second successive day at the island fortifications which command the harbor's mouth. Nevertheless, no serious damage to the forts was re-

PROTEST: Propaganda Battle Marks War In Mediterranean

(By Associated Press)

The battle of diplomacy and propaganda for strategic position in the Mediterranean basin overshadowed actual war there today, with the British charging the Axis with sponsoring native outbreaks against them in Spanish Morocco.

London disclosed that a strong protest had been lodged with the commander of the Spanish military forces at Tangier over Axis-inspired riots among the Moslem natives following the explosion of a time bomb for which Axis propagandists, with remarkable promptness, blamed the British.

An authoritative London source said the attention of the Spanish government probably would be directed to Axis attempts to embitter British-Spanish relations. Spain conceivably could be forced into war by Germany and Italy, old time benefactors of the present Nationalist government of Generalissimo Franco.

The inflammatory trend of Axis propaganda over the Tangier incident suggested that this was Adolf Hitler's objective.

Actual warfare in the Mediterranean region was marked by Axis reports of a raid on the British naval base at Alexandria, Egypt, new air attacks on Malta and claims that Axis airmen had scattered British imperial columns in Eastern Libya. The Axis admitted

Steady Crying In Infant Ward Snaps Nurse's Mind, She Poisons Two Babies

Murder Charge Filed When One Dies of Opium Drops.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Medical science studied today "the snapped mind" of one of its own practitioners—an "angel in white" who betrayed her trust by poisoning two infants in a hospital nursery.

Though Nurse Irma Twiss Epstein was formally charged with homicide because one of the infants died, authorities indicated that hers was not a case for the courts.

In 1940 Mrs. Epstein retired from her profession—after years of caring for babies—to have a baby of her own. It died at birth. A few weeks later she took an overdose of sleeping tablets. She spent four days in the psychopathic ward of Bellevue hospital.

She was alone Sunday in the nursery of the Bronx Maternity hospital. Six babies were in her charge. Two were crying and had been for hours. She took an eye dropper and a small bottle from a chest and put several drops of tincture of opium into each open and wailing mouth.

She left the nursery and in the corridor encountered Anna Banker, night superintendent. Mrs. Epstein passed her without apparently seeing her, muttering ". . . babies . . . babies."

GEN. JOHNSON:

Senate Plans Action In OCD Arts Fight

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — "And midst the dead and dying were some grown old in wars,

The death-wound on their gallant breast, the last of many scars,

But some were young, and suddenly beheld life's morn decline

And one had come from Bingen, fair Bingen on the Rhine."

"Every year, for some time, it has been my fortune (good or ill) to be invited to talk before the West Point cadets by the current chairman of the lecture society.

Gen. Johnson.

I use "ill" fortune in the alternative just as a manner of speaking. The lecture course is financed by the cadets out of their very meager spending allowance. It is rather unusual at the academy where the course isn't exactly liberal. But more distinguished and dignified educators, scientists and publicists will find it an unalloyed pleasure, just as I do—but for a different reason.

When I was a cadet the inmates knew about as little of what was going on outside those grey and cloistered walls as the inhabitants of other detention institutions up and down the Hudson, monasteries and penitentiaries — and cared less.

My first U. S. M. A. appearance happened to be a kind of question and answer forum on the news. I have conducted many — some in other colleges. The latter were always remarkable in the mastery of the meaning of current events they showed among the current crop of kids, but this one was what Lincoln called "an astonisher." Regardless of its hoary old curriculum, eWst Point had liberalized itself. It was such restless, bright and inquisitive young minds as these "chairmen of the lecture society" who had pioneered the going against the handicaps of a century of tradition.

The first time I went there they broke another rule—which they would not think of doing with a stranger. I had begged for informality and forgetfulness of rank. Encouraged by that and egged on and informed by my own classmates and schoolmates, that chairman turned loose his wolf. I never got such a razzing in my life or had a better chance to go to work on army stuffed shirts and better men. It turned out to be a riot. After that the big gymnasium was always full and that was the standard ritual for the kid chairman.

Last academic year that slight, slender young official struck me as almost too gentle and modest for the job. He had a beautiful skinning prepared for me — and then fumbled it with too much gentleness, consideration and praise. But I suspected after talking with him, and learned later from his cadet biography and from a cadet nephew, who was one of his best friends, that he was one of the most cultured and at the same time the most shy and retiring men in the corps—at the same time being well loved and respected by everybody.

It seems uncanny that the quotation at the head of his cadet biography, written a year ago, should read:

"'Tis not what man does which exalts him but what man would do."

On graduation last June, Cadet Alexander Nininger chose service with the infantry in the Philippines. Last week the war department announced the award to him of the congressional medal of honor (after he was dead) "for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action...above and beyond the call of duty."

That decoration is the hardest in the world to get. In all our wars only a few have been awarded. The act must not be merely brave—it must be brave beyond belief and be, by no stretch of imagination, one that could reasonably be expected of any soldier in line of duty.

MacArthur's terribly punished left flank in Batan was being pushed back and was distintegrating under greatly superior force. No reserves remained. Our little Nininger literally made himself a reserve — a one man army. With a sack of hand grenades and a rifle, he charged alone, outflanked the enemy, and, although three times wounded, drove them into a retreat which saved the line. He was found dead surrounded by the dead and wounded of the enemy.

Perhaps there is a story of surpassing heroism but I haven't heard it.

KILLS GUNMAN WHO INVADES POLICE STATION

Straight-Shooting Detective Gets Bandit Who Used Women as Shields.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — A cool, straight-shooting detective received highest praise from his superior officers today for killing a bandit who invaded a police station in a desperate attempt to liberate a companion arrested only a short time before for a double killing in a tavern.

The foolhardy, gun-crazy bandit was identified as Joseph Skupien, 26, member of a shotgun band which police said had been terrorizing south side taverns for several weeks. His slayer was Detective John Leahy.

Earlier, two gunmen identified as Skupien and Bruno Jachymiak shot up a tavern owned by Mrs. Pascuala Cerrillos, killing two Mexicans, Jesus Hortawo, 30, and Romano Bessera, 35. Jachymiak was captured shortly afterward.

While Jachymiak was being questioned at the police station, Skupien, brandishing a revolver, dashed in and demanded the release of his partner. Desk Sergt. Joseph Connelly could not believe the man was serious, but as the officer stepped forward, Skupien fired at him twice, missing him narrowly.

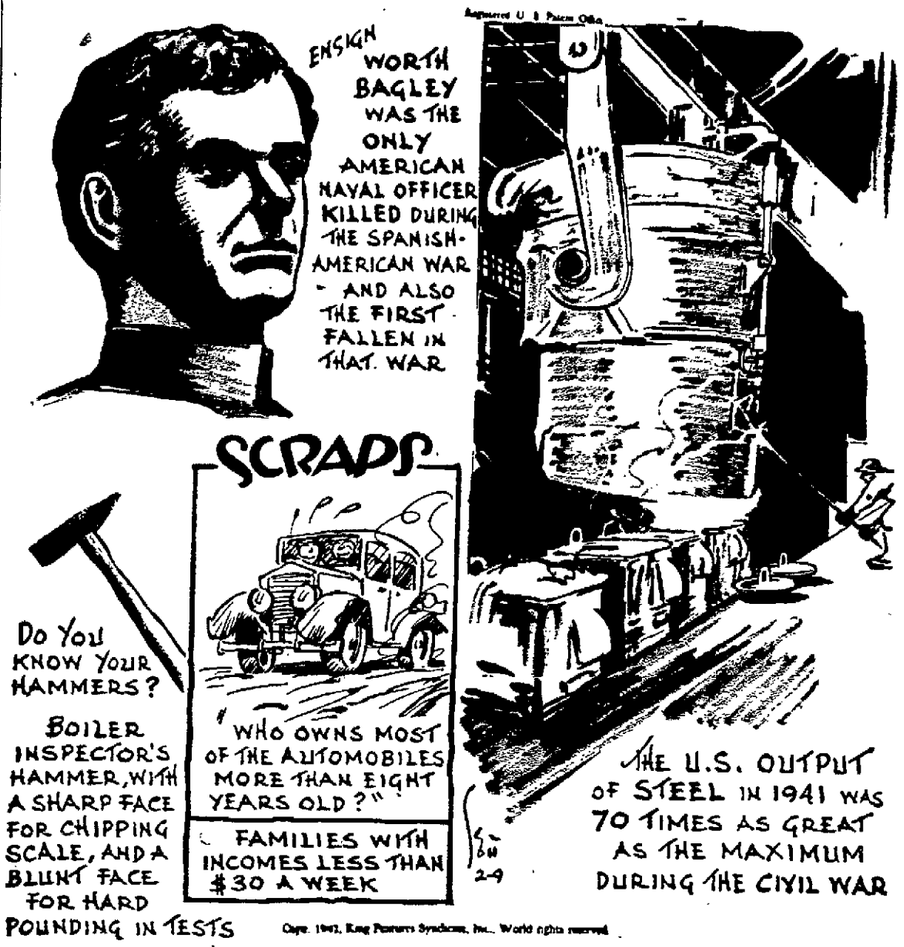

Skupien then ran into the squad room, seized two Mexican women, shoved them in front of him as a shield and threatened to kill any detective who came into the room.

Detective Leahy on the floor above heard the shooting and uproar. He crept cautiously half way down the stairs and fired two shots. Skupien wheeled and fired four times, two of his bullets wounding witnesses, but not seriously.

The detective then descended the remainder of the way and fired two more shots, killing the bandit.

TAFT HITS AT MORALE PART OF BUREAU JOB

Screen Actor Douglas Says He Was Named on Basis of No Compensation.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Move to strip the Office of Civilian Defense of authority to direct morale-building activities developed in congress today as the house resumed debate on a $100,000,000 OCD appropriation fund which has aroused a storm of controversy over the posts given Hollywood's Melvyn Douglas and Dancer Mayris Chaney.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said there seemed little doubt that if the house failed to circumscribe the bureau's powers a strong effort would be made in the senate to do so.

"I think the OCD ought to be limited in its activities to the promotion of purely defense preparations," Taft told reporters. "I don't believe there is any crying need to build up the morale of the American people, but if there is, it ought to be handled by some other agency that doesn't have such a big primary job to do." He suggested the office of facts and figures, headed by Archibald MacLeish.

In the meanwhile Douglas, the screen star who has been one of the main targets of congressional objections to OCD personnel selections, asserted that he had been appointed to head the arts section on a "without compensation" basis. When his appointment was made public last week an OCD official said Douglas would receive $8,000 a year for time actually spent on the job.

His supposed salary was one of the considerations which led the house to prohibit last week use of any of the OCD's appropriation to finance "fan dancing, street shows, theatricals, or other public entertainments."

The other main topic of debate was the appointment of Miss Chaney, dancer friend of Mrs. Eleanor Rosevelt, as head of children's activities in the physical fitness division. Miss Chaney, defending her job last week, said she had not yet received any of her $4,600 a year salary.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

BROADWAY is the happy hunting ground of the odd ending—the place where the unexpected can be expected to happen, because it usually does. On Truth-Is-Stranger-Than-Fiction Street, everyday doings that don't attract a single raised eyebrow often contain plot nuances so flagrantly foreign from any set formula that no self-respecting script writer would use them, even in a dream sequence.

Kilgallen

In Manhattan, life is like a $4.40 musical—there's always a "sock" finale. Because this is a town that fairly ripples with Ripley-isms.

Of course you've seen movies and read books about temperamental musicians — the blue moods, their quicksilver eccentricities. So you will not be jolted too harshly when you harken to the tale of Lou Martin of Broadway.

Lou Martin has directed the orchestra at Leon and Eddie's for more than seven years, which made him a lucky musician, because the permanance of his chore cut out the jazzman's bugaboo of the one-night stand and made it possible for him and his wife to live an almost average married life. They lived in a little brick house in the country, just 50 minutes from Swing street. They had a car, a small boat and a garden. So far, great.

But Lou's batoneering at Leon and Eddie's made his hours a little different from the average commuter's. He'd get home at about 5 every morning. The house would be dark and quiet. Mrs. Martin would be fast asleep. So Martin would brood and fume and fume and brood because he was lonely and had no one to talk to.

One night Martin didn't show up for his work at Leon and Eddie's. He didn't show up the next night, or the night after that.

Lou was in Reno. He had left in a huff to divorce his wife, on the complaint that he wasn't being given companionship.

Well, he waited in Reno for the usual six weeks and the waiting cooled him off and calmed him down. He felt foolish, and a little ashamed of himself. But there he was, and he reasoned that it would be silly to waste all that time and money without getting what he'd gone out there to get.

And so Mrs. Lou Martin was divorced by Mr. Lou Martin, and Broadway cluck-clicked and said too bad, another nice marriage gone, and Lou got back into town and went back to work.

Then what did he do? Well, first he sent a big box of flowers to his ex-wife. Then he got married again.

To whom, do you ask? Why, to Mrs. Lou Martin, of course, and they're spending their honeymoon in the little brick house just 50 minutes from Broadway. The bridegroom commutes from Swing street.

A B picture script writer would be ashamed of that plot, and how about this one?

This one is the plot about the two boyhood pals. You know how that one has been toyed with in the movies, in the click magazines, and on the stage. One boy becomes a thief, the other a policeman. The little rich boy grows up to lose all his money and the little poor boy become a tycoon. One becomes a celebrity and the other one a nonentity. That's logical, really, and that's the way it is in the movies.

There were two kids who were pals just like that in New York quite a few years ago. They were both poor little kids. And do you know what happened to them? One became a great star named Eddie Cantor. The other became a great star, too. His name was Georgie Jessel. Now, after 40 years, they're both still big names. Cantor is starring in "Banjo Eyes" at the Hollywood. Jessel is starring in "High Kickers" at the Broadhurst. And they're still good friends, too.

But it never happens that way in the movies.

GOVERNMENT HAS ITS OWN TAX TROUBLES, SENDS OUT REFUNDS

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Having tax troubles?

Here's consolation—the government had them, too during the fiscal year of 1941.

And those particular woes provided cheery news to thousands who dug too deep in paying past levies, and, as a result of over-assessments were refunded a total of $54,006,883.

If General MacArthur is not too preoccupied with other matters, his name appeared for a modest sized refund.

In a bulky document turned over today for law-required inspection by congress, the internal revenue bureau listed the names of those who paid more than their share and the amounts of their refunds.

Deep in the list was the name of Douglas MacArthur, now holding Batan peninsula against the Japanese invaders of the Philippines. The bureau reported it had sent the general its check for $629.66, as executor for the estate of Mary P. MacArthur, his mother.

The refunds went out to taxpayers in widely-varied walks of life—stars of the stage and screen, the socially prominent, statesmen, singers, men prominent in high finance, diplomats, industrialists, sports promoters, publishers, bankers and authors.

The largest individual refund —two checks totaling $253,957— went to George P. Jones, Chicago industrialist, while Arthur Curtis James, New York railroad executive, was second with $185,000, and Aldus C. Higgins, Massachusetts industrialist, third with $148,135.32.

The largest refund for income and miscellaneous taxes was turned over to the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York City, a total of $1,814,364.99, while the New York Life Insurance company recovered $1,479,704.20 and the Brown and Williamson Tobacco company of Louisville, Ky., and Petersburg, Va., recouped $1,324,407.56.

Perhaps they wouldn't have missed it, but:

Heiress Doris Duke Cromwell drew $7,169.96; Marshall Field, publisher and merchant, $531.23; Edsel B. Ford, $533.73; Harvey Firestone, jr., of Akron, O., $533.65; New York banker Harvey D. Gibson, $533.65.

RITES ARE SET

Funeral For Anna Fisher To Be Held Tuesday.

Funeral services for Anna Marie Fisher who died Saturday at her home, 500 Parkview avenue, after a prolonged illness will be held Tuesday at 3 p. m. at the Finefrock funeral home in charge of Rev. Albert L. Linder, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Movies Essential Industry, Draft Director Decides

WASHINGTON — Along with medicine, science, dentistry and varied forms of engineering professions, the motion picture industry today found itself classified as "essential to war production" and as a result key men in the film world may be granted deferment from the draft.

Classification of the movies in the essential category was ordered by Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service, at the request of Lowell Mellett, coordinator of government films.

Gen. Hershey explained that the ruling was not a "blanket deferment." He said that the decision as to whether a movie star, writer or director was "essential" to film production would have to be passed on by local draft boards. It was pointed out that placing the industry in the "essential" class would give the movie star the right to ask for deferment because of such classification.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1942.

It's being called "daylight savings"—but it seems more like redistribution.

Of course "the majority is always right"—until people find out more about some of the men they elected to office.

The $2.09 price for an automobile "use" tax stamp is confusing to some people who think that the nine cents is a sales tax on a $2 purchase.

Barnacles On the Ship of State

THE ADMIRABLE purposes of Civilian Defense are being seriously jeopardized by inept handling of this phase of the war program by some of the people in charge—notably Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who, as wife of the president, is in position to exert what may be properly termed "undue influence" in selection of OCD personnel.

Thus far the handling of civilian defense, in the build-up of its central organization in Washington, has savored more of New Deal policies than of actual war effort, and the climax of congressional and public disapproval appears to have been reached with the appointment of Mayris Chaney, dancer-protege of Mrs. Roosevelt, to a $4,600 a year OCD post. It is announced that Miss Chaney, who named one of her dances "The Eleanor Glide," is to direct "children's activities in the physical fitness division of the Office of Civilian Defense—and Miss Chaney is quoted as having said, "I think my work is important."

Following so closely after announcement of the appointment of Melvyn Douglas, motion picture actor of "parlor pink" proclivities, to the $8,000 a year job as director of the "arts council" of the information division of OCD, the appointment of Miss Chaney caused another gasp of amazement in Washington and led Congressman Ford, of California, to make the open charge that "a small coterie of 38 select social friends of Mrs. Roosevelt are getting $163,000 a year—enough to buy a good fighting airplane."

Civilian defense has been seriously accepted by many people in the United States as a necessary part of the war emergency—with every city and community obligated to participate—but it has not been sanctioned as merely another avenue for wasteful expenditure of public funds which are now badly needed to provide actual war materials.

President Roosevelt recently made reference to the need for an exodus of "parasites" to relieve overcrowded conditions in Washington. An excellent start along this line would be to eliminate a considerable number of political "parasites" that are cluttering up the national capital and to avoid adding needlessly to the already astounding lists of government employes.

The boys who are drawing a soldier's pay will not understand why political hangers-on should be rewarded by appointment to soft snaps in safe places while they are called upon to undergo hardships and risk their lives in the service of their country.

Nor will those millions of people who are now being called upon to "save and sacrifice" understand it.

When the barnacles have been removed from the Ship of State the sailing will be much smoother.

Many Tons of Unstirred Sugar

AN ITEM of twenty years ago reminds that it was not until then that Mansfield restaurants were returning sugar bowls to tables and counters, after war and post-war shortage and high cost.

With sugar rationing again in prospect it is quite likely that brakes will once more be put on the unlimited use of sugar in public eating places, where the waste has been found to reach a tremendous total.

In a recent survey of 224 New York restaurants it was found that five pounds of sugar had been left in 1,722 of 8,113 patrons' coffee and teacups. Waste at that rate, spread over New York City, would total 7,000 pounds a day, or three and a half tons. This would place the annual national waste at 50,000 tons, statisticians estimate.

Use of more sugar than is needed, failing to stir sugar poured liberally into a cup of coffee or tea, and similar extravagances, merely reveal American peace-time traits which do not fit into a war economy and which will be gradually dispensed with—for the duration.

Moral: Keep sweet—but not by using more sugar than you need

Delay Arrest of 'Use' Tax Violators

NO EFFORT is being made, thus far, to detect motorists who are continuing to drive their cars without having bought a "use" tax stamp, although the law requiring display of one of these stamps on each motor vehicle became effective February 1.

No instructions have been issued from Washington concerning enforcement of the stamp license law and there may be a check-up of returned cards before action is taken against violators.

In Ohio, where April 1 is the effective date for new license plates, the matter of detecting violators can be simplified by checking the cards of stamp purchasers against the license list and requiring purchase of a stamp before license plates are issued—with such punishment of violators as may be decided on by that time.

Persons driving cars on which the "use" tax has not been paid should realize at once, however, that they are violating a federal law and are liable to arrest and penalty.

Congress Can Repeal Pension Grab

SOME congressmen are said to be indignant over the way in which the bill to pension themselves was rushed through without vote, and without giving them opportunity to express objections.

If enough of them are righteously angry it will be an easy matter to repeal this scandalous grab of taxpayers' money before the pension plan goes into effect. If this matter is brought out into the open, with record vote required it may be doubted if a majority in either senate or house would admit inability to sustain themselves without public aid.

In the good old days of appeasement Americans were told that the Japanese resented being called "Japs"—but you needn't be so careful now.

Now that automobiles and tire agencies are restricted to service, it will be necessary to find a prefix that means much better than "super."

You are still privileged to consult the almanac that gives weather forecasts for the year.

BILLIONS FOR DEFENSE, NOT ONE CENT FOR POPPYCOCK!

War Depletes Pantry Supplies

AS PANTRY shelves become depleted of staples long supplied by the Netherlands Indies these busy islands loom more important to the American housewife.

"Over pirate-infested seas, the earliest galleons sailed from the 'spice islands,' their holds filled with the riches of the Indies," recalls a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "More fabulous were the tales of these romantic adventures.

"Centuries before refrigeration, when spices became prized as food preservatives and taste disguisers, the spice trade built castles for Europe's merchant princes. It inspired Columbus to span the Atlantic.

Pepper From India.

"Uncle Sam's yearly spice bill from the Netherlands Indies mounted to some $4,000,000 before the war. Black pepper alone totaled 15 million pounds in 1940, and 65 million pounds the year before, to which should be added five million pounds of white pepper. This is 96 per cent of United States consumption.

"Thirteen million pounds of coffee, 31 million pounds of tea, over 300 million pounds of tapioca, 3,500,000 pounds of nutmeg, 700,000 pounds of cloves, also were shipped to the United States in the same year.

"Soap, margarine and lard substitutes on the pantry shelves contained much of the year's receipts of $3,650,000 worth of palm oil from the Netherlands Indies.

"The islands produced 90 per cent of the world supply of quinine and about 99 per cent of United States requirements.

Canned Products.

"The housewife's growing dependence upon cans for the preservation of food will be affected by the shortage of tin. Tin had come from the islands recently in increasing quantities — $13,000,000 worth in 1940, which was 20 per cent of Uncle Sam's import of the metal.

"The 1940 item of $112,000,000 for rubber was the largest of Uncle Sam's purchases from the Netherlands Indies which normally produced forty per cent of the world supply, and nearly 30 per cent of United States requirements.

"Paraffin and paraffin wax to the value of $3,000,000 are the only petroleum products imported in great quantities, though the islands rank fifth in world production of petroleum. American interests control over 25 per cent of production there.

"Sumatra is the principal petroleum and palm oil source, also producing tea, coffee and a large percentage of America's rubber. United States companies maintain large rubber plantations on the island. Many cigars smoked in the United States have wrappers from Sumatra.

"The richest, most populous and perhaps best known of the islands is Java, a name synonymous with coffee, though a leaf disease in the past century ruined the original variety from Arabia. Java now exports about a fifth of the Netherlands Indies' rubber, a third of the coffee. It exports two-thirds of the peanuts and essential oils, and three-fourths of the tea, and rice. Java is practically the sole source of quinine, sugar, cocoa, tapioca, and kapok on the islands.

"Batavia, the modern capital of Java, is the principal port of the Netherlands Indies, and handles exports from Celebes, Timor, New Guinea and other islands of the group.

"In 1940, $167,000,000 worth of the Indies' products came to the United States, nearly double that of the previous year."

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Feb. 9, 1922.

Dana Jenney was chosen in New York City as one of the 10 photograph models who make up the 1937 "all-American beauty team."

T. J. Chamberlain was elected president and treasurer of the Martin Hardware company.

James L. Houck, 84, died at his home six miles north of Mansfield.

Bill raising salaries of county commisisoners from $1,600 to $2,700 was passed by house of representatives.

TODAY IN HISTORY

William Henry Harrison, ninth president of the United States, was born at the plantation of Berkeley in Charles County, Va., on Feb. 9, 1773. One month after his inauguration as president he died of pneumonia.

Health and Diet

"Keeping Fit" Is Patriotic Duty.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE DUTY we can all perform for the country in this hour of stress and responsibility is for each of us to keep in as good physical shape as possible. You can't tell nowadays when you'll need that reserve energy to do an extra job in a hurry without warning or preparation.

I don't join with the scare heads that have been thrown at us. I think we are a good deal healthier than we have been told we are, but we can all do something to improve our physical fitness.

Get some exercise every day—the younger you are, the more you should get. Keep the legs and the wind in condition. Get back some strength in your arms. You may have to carry a rifle twenty miles one of these fine days.

We've been told by some people in authority that half of us Americans are in a state of semi-starvation, but in my opinion most of us eat too much. Let's go at it more moderately. Get trimmed down so our hearts don't have to carry so much extra weight.

It will leave some food for our allies in other countries and at the same time improve our own state of bodily preparedness. Eat the balanced foods, with enough vitamins—milk, eggs, vegetables and some fruit once a day. Meat at least twice a week (it contains more Vitamin B than any other food).

Cut Out Overindulgence.

Those who indulge in alcohol or tobacco would be patriotic to reduce the quota. The climate of North America is a very bad one for drinking. We are told by authorities that we live in the most high pressure area on earth—the area where climatic conditions conduce to the greatest amount of physical and mental activity.

We also live in the area where nature has provided such bounty that we get the greatest reward for our labor. The combination makes for a state of mind and body for the average man that if he starts stimulating himself artificially, he is very likely to overdo it. With liquor and tobacco, those of us who indulge at all can practically reduce our consumption by one-half for the liquor and a quarter for the tobacco.

Of course this advice must be administered with some common sense. We are not all the same age and we haven't the same capabilities. We can't all take the amount of exercise that would condition a person for a tennis championship or a prize fight.

Each Person Different.

There are 140,000,000 of us and since the finger print pattern of each one is different, it's a reasonable assumption that the muscle fibers of our arms and legs are not all exactly the same in tone and endurance. You are a good judge of yourself. If exercise makes you feel good, take plenty of it. If you're over fifty and a little exercise makes you feel good, take a little more. If it doesn't make you feel good, stop it and don't have it on your conscience.

Get plenty of sleep or rest if you think you need that more than exercise. In this high power climate it's quite possible we should imitate our good neighbors in the tropics and take a siesta after lunch.

Hints on Etiquette.

When you and your fiance take a girl friend for a blind date, don't introduce the young couple and then leave them alone. Keep together at least until you see how the strangers-to-each-other are getting along, and if it looks as if they would have a good time together.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Americans Held as Jap Agents After Skillful Work By G-Men

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It's a justice department secret, but the tip-off that led to the apprehension of the three Americans who will soon stand trial as Jap propagandists originally came from such widely separated points as Manchuria and Costa Rica.

Last fall U. S. officials in these two countries informed the justice department that Nazi agents were distributing pro-Japanese pamphlets, printed in English as well as the native language. It was believed they had been written by an American.

A quiet check-up disclosed, it is charged, that the writer was Ralph Townsend, an editor of Scribner's Commentator.

Further inquiry also revealed that the pamphlets were being widely distributed in the United States. At this point Albert E. Arent and Arthur B. Caldwell, able young attorneys of the criminal division of the justice departmnt who had dug up the facts in the Auhagen and Transocean Nazi propaganda cases, were called in.

Arent and Caldwell made two trips—one to San Francisco and one to Lake Geneva, Wis., where Scribner's Commentator was published. Aided by a staff of crack G-men, Arent and Caldwell uncovered some startling information from the books of Jap firms and individual business men.

One of the most significant discoveries was that the Japs were following the Nazi technique of using newspaper men and writers as propaganda agents. According to testimony which will be presented Frderick V. Williams, a Pacific coast newspaper man, not only was the correspondent of the Japanese Times and Mail of Tokyo, but also was making pro-Jap speeches before many organizations.

As correspondent of the Jap papers, Williams was registered with the state department and apparently felt this was sufficient.

What the G-men did not overlook was that the Transocean and Auhagen cases had taught them that the favorite Axis device was to give their propaganda agents nominal employment as newspaper men to cover up their real operations.

Investigation of Williams' activities led to evidence involving David W. Ryder and Townsend, who with Williams are about to stand trial as Jap agents. The indictments charge the three men with conspiracy to violate the Foreign Agents Registration Act and "with willful failure to state material facts in registration statements."

Maury Maverick's Flag.

THE FLAG that flew over the Capitol when congress declared war on all three Axis powers—Japan, Germany and Italy—is in the hands of Maury Maverick, former congressman from Texas.

Maverick, who now works for the OPM, exercised a congressman's privilege of buying a new flag to be flown over the Capitol. He took it to the Capitol late in the afternoon of Dec. 8, and was allowed to make an exchange of his new flag for the flag that had been flying that day, which was the day after Pearl Harbor and the day congress declared war on Japan.

A few days later, when he heard the president was going to ask for a declaration of war against Germany and Italy, Maverick rushed up to the Capitol with his already historic flag, and had it raised on the flag pole just before war was declared against Hitler and Mussolini.

Then he took it away again, and now keeps it as a cherished memento in his own home.

Persistent Fanny.

WHATEVER else she may be charged with, no one can say that Secretary Frances Perkins is not persistent.

Excluded from an important role in the war labor administration, the secretary of labor for months has made repeated undercover attempts to elbow herself into the picture. Invariably she has been rebuffed, but always she has doggedly tried some new maneuver.

Her latest was an ambitious scheme to grab off the war labor division that Sidney Hillman has ably directed since the days of the original National Defense Commission.

Miss Perkins popped her plan shortly after Donald Nelson was named war production chief. Nelson told the president and Hillman that any set-up of the labor division agreeable to them would be agreeable to him. Getting wind of this, Miss Perkins thought she saw a promising chance to stage a blitz snatch for power.

So she quietly prepared an executive order to be signed by the president placing under her control all activities for the supply and training of labor. The effect of the order would have been to strip Hillman's division of its chief functions.

Miss Perkins slipped her order to the budget bureau for transmittal to the president. But, meanwhile, Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt was tipped off what Miss Perkins was up to. McNutt also is ambitious to play a bigger role in the war organization. Unlike Miss Perkins, the white-crested Indianan is on good terms with Hillman, but McNutt figured that if Hillman's division was going to be reshuffled, he, too, would put in a strong bid.

So McNutt cooked up an executive order of his own, a little different from Miss Perkins'. He proposed setting up a Labor Supply Board, operating under him. His formula, on the surface, was different but the practical effect would have been the same as the Perkins' scheme.

But like all of Miss Perkins' other attempted grabs for power, this one also got nowhere. The president directed that both proposed executive orders be shelved, while he and Hillman decided what they wanted to do.

Security Meddlers.

IN THE past two years repeated efforts have been made on Capitol Hill to extend the scope and increase the payments of the Social Security Act. But every attempt has got nowhere because of the meddling and bureaucratic sniping of the moguls of the social security board.

Now these moguls are up to their old obstructive tricks—this time regarding the plan to increase unemployment insurance benefits for workers who have been made idle by the all-out war production program.

The plan was drafted by Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt and War Labor Chief Sidney Hillman, and proposes—during 1942 only—to increase the period of unemployment benefits from 13 to 26 weeks and raise the weekly maximum to $24. President Roosevelt warmly approved the program and recommended to congress that $300,000,000 be appropriated immediately.

To speed action, the Social Security Board was asked to prepare the necessary bill. This however, was a sad mistake.

Seeing what they thought was a swell chance to sneak through an extension of their bureaucratic powers, the SSB slipped into the bill a provision placing under their control all state unemployment insurance systems. This was done without consulting either the White House or McNutt and Hillman.

If the SSB had any idea they could get away with this scheme, they soon learned differently. Quickly discovered, it has stirred up a terrific furor among state officials, who are bombarding congress with irate protests.

As a result, the original McNutt-Hillman unemployment relief proposal has been completely sidetracked. Weeks have gone by and it is still hanging fire in committee while the SSB moguls and state officials battle furiously over the former's attempt to grab off more power.

Meanwhile, thousands walk the streets trying to exist on meager jobless benefits further reduced by the steadily increasing cost of living.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt has kicked the lid off again and not in some time has he uncovered so much controversy in Washington, D. C., as when he suggested that all the "parasites" get out of town to make way for war workers."

Insurance salesmen, grocery clerks, society leaders, dollar-a-year-men, and members of a dozen other categories are either defending themselves or asking their best friends: "Am I a Parasite?" And even their BEST friends will tell them "yes" or "no." Because there's hardly a living soul in the nation's capital that hasn't a definite idea as to whether his best friend is a leech, a politician, a hanger-on, an opportunist, all of those things—or just a conscientious worker trying to get ahead and do his job as he sees it.

I THINK it is rather amusing that the biggest protest to the president's suggestion came from people who have "lived in Washington all our lives." These people don't have a vote in local or national affairs. Their representation in government employment is negligible. Yet they thrive as the capital thrives. Their business booms as government booms. Their big booms in two generations have been during World war I and World war II. They are the real estate dealers, the store owners, the utility and transportation operators, the other dozen or more entrepreneurs who keep a big city alive. They have been the first to scream that the president was directing his barbs at them.

He wasn't.

"Parasites" here are hangers-on, politically, socially, and economically. They are the 1,001 useless lobbyists. They are "attorneys" without portfolio. They are "manufacturers' representatives" without knowledge of the company or product they "represent." They are "socialites" with a big expense account and no social background. They are politicians who have been deservedly dunked by their electorates. They are "presidents," "secretaries," or "executive directors" of national societies and organizations nobody ever heard of.

Old-timers who were here in 1917 say: "A lot of the parasites will leave. They did 25 years ago. They couldn't stand the criticism. Those who could afford it in those days went to Florida. The others went home."

A Farmer's Diary

Big Chestnut Tree

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE light gravelly soils that lie high above the rim of Honey Creek once grew luxuriant chestnut groves. Now, in some neglected corner, or where a slope is too steep for farming, can still be seen gaunt outlines of what was once noble, fruitful timber. Our neighbor's apple farm had a stately chestnut that yielded small, numerous nuts. Not only the children of the community, but also the gray and red squirrels had fun with those nuts in October. The squirrels never found all their caches—the fruit was left to swell and sprout and grow. In this way, for centuries, the chestnut groves replenished themselves.

Then, twenty years or more ago, the blight struck. Like all the smaller members of its race, scattered through woods and hilly fields, the giant sickened and died. For years it stood clothed miserably in sagging bark that waved in the wind. Even yet this fall it stood like a skeleton whitened by the summer sun.

A few weeks ago my neighbor tested its massive trunk for soundness and planned to cut it for timber. The circumference near the ground was 22 feet. No standard six-foot crosscut saw would do the job. Hardly would one eight-foot long suffice. When it finally fell, the diameter of the base was more than a foot higher than a tall man. The smooth heavy trunk measured 18 feet without a branch, and lost only a single foot. It weighted a lumberman's heavy truck so that a caterpillar tractor must be hitched in front to haul it to the hilltop.

A standard circular saw was not large enough to cut this log. They hauled it 12 miles to a larger mill. This single log produced more than 1,800 feet of good clean chestnut lumber, the owner told me with delight.

"I believe," he said, "that was the largest stick taken from this section of the country within a century. Isn't it a shame that blight has taken trees like that, that made these barren hills so beautiful?"

BATTLE RAGES AS JAPS LAND ON SINGAPORE

Beach Heads Established on Coast of Beleaguered Island By Enemy.

vulnerable places by mazes of barbed wire and other obstacles.

The first landing was announced this morning in a terse communique which said:

"An enemy force in strength succeeded in landing on the western shores of Singapore island last night. They are being engaged by our troops. Fighting continues."

Presumably the Japanese used invasion barges to cross the narrow strait, the western reaches of which are less than a mile wide in some places, but the communique gave no details and did not indicate how the battle was going.

The assault came just 10 days after the last British forces had been withdrawn from the Malayan mainland, where for six weeks they had fought a losing struggle as the Japanese drove more than 400 miles down the peninsula from the Thai border.

The artillery bombardment preceding the assault, in anticipation of which the British had been feverishly mustering every resource on the island, began at dawn yesterday and continued unabated throughout the day and night.

From guns and mortars of all calibers the Japanese rained steel upon British defense positions fronting the 35-mile long strait.

Japanese warplanes ranged overhead, unloading tons of bombs and screaming down to machine-gun every sign of movement on roads for some distance behind the front.

After launching their bombardment the Japanese, in an apparent attempt to trick Singapore's defenders out of position and pave the way for the main attack in the west, feinted suddenly yesterday at the British right flank, landing troops on tiny Palau Ubin island at the eastern end of Johore strait.

Although Palu Ubin is only about a half mile from Singapore island at some points, there was no indication that the Japanese were pressing home the assault from there.

Before the British retreated from the Malayan mainland Palau Ubin was a strongly garrisoned fortress, with 14-inch guns guarding the approaches to the great Singapore naval base situated a few miles to the west on Johore strait

The Japanese, however, apparently found Palau Ubin abandoned, for the communique announcing its occupation made no mention of resistance.

In landing on the west shore of Singapore island the Japanese drew on the experience of repeated landings in pushing down the Malayan mainland.

In that campaign specially trained Japanese shock troops again and again landed on the shores of the Peninsula behind the British lines, forcing the imperial troops to retreat to avoid being cut off

British inability to win control of the air contributed in part to the success of these Japanese tactics, and an acknowledged deficiency in air strength is one of the greatest obstacles now facing the defenders of Singapore.

How many trained troops are available to meet the Japanese invasion is a military secret British Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared last month in the house of commons that there were 60,000 troops in Malaya at the start of the campaign there, but did not give any figures on casualties.

Since then civilian volunteers have been recruited from Singapore's population, which in peace times is about 750,000, and only last week Lieut. Gen. A. E. Percival, commander of the island garrison, announced the arrival of reinforcements of undisclosed strength.

Among the civilian volunteers are approximately 1,000 Chinese.

zon," manufacturers will be able to obtain information on contracts which their firms may be able to handle."

Manufacturers were being registered by civilian defense volunteers selected by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of the local civilian defense board. Capt. Glenn L. Bierly, commander of Company F, Ohio State guard, directed members of his company who stood guard over the caravan while it was parked overnight at the armory.

The trailers are expected to be guarded again tonight at the armory and will go on to Ashland tomorrow morning where another inspection will be made. The tour will continue until March 9 when 25 Ohio cities will have seen the caravan.

The specially built trucks are 35 feet long, eight feet wide, and 11½ feet high and have a compact heating and lighting unit. Interviews were staged today by representatives of the navy and the prime contractors with attending manufacturers in the trucks. Routzon said that if any prolonged discussion was needed in case a sub-contract was decided upon, the parties involved would probably hold sessions in the hotel.

a new RAF attack on Tripoli.

By and large, the British appeared to have checked the German-Italian counter-offensive in Libya about 40 miles west of Tobruk. The Axis offered no new claims of ground gained.

Spanish Morocco authorities quieted riotous factions in Tangier by martial law after an outburst which was touched off by the explosion Friday of a time bomb in a taxi loaded with British diplomatic baggage on a Tangier pier.

Fourteen persons on the crowded dock were killed and 36 were wounded

The British and the Germans accused each other of inciting the Arabs to violence.

The Russians, meanwhile, were reported launching a new offensive in the Donets basin against German battalions whose massed artillery fire, a Russian expert said, had lost its power. The British radio said the Russians already had announced the recapture of Krasnograd.

Sixty miles southwest of Kharkov, Krasnograd is an important junction of the Kharkov-Dnieperopetrovsk and Odessa railway, indicating another advance by the Russians upon Dnieperopetrovsk.

REPULSE NEW BATAN ATTACK

ported in the war department communique which covered developments up until early Monday morning, Philippine time.

On the Batan peninsula, MacArthur's report to Washington yesterday told of Japanese pressure on both the right and left flank of his line, accompanied by twenty four hours of heavy aerial bombardment of the American-Filipino psitions.

The Japanese, the war department communique disclosed, gained some ground against MacArthur's right, which is anchored on Manila bay. The enemy, however, were thrown back in a sharp counterattack.

Details of the heavy fighting on the left, or China sea, flank were not disclosed, but it is on that side of the peninsula that the Japanese have been using suicide detachments in a costly and futile attempt to turn MacArthur's line.

Brigadier General Clinton Pierce commented Saturday on the sacrifice nature of such operations when he talked to Clark Lee, the Associated Press correspondent on Batan with MacArthur's army

Pierce, who had a toe shot off by a Japanese sniper the other day, declared:

"Now they have suicide missions attempting to land on our flanks, so they pick their best men and toughest fighters.

"But I still say that they are rotten rifle shots. That sniper took three cracks at me across the road here but couldn't hit anything but my toe."

The intensive twenty-four hour aerial plastering of the American lines which went with the latest enemy thrust on Batan evidently was part of the softening-up to pave the way for the hoped for break through.

TRAFFIC KILLS 3 NEAR CITY; 22 DIE IN OHIO

Crawford County Has Heavy Toll; Three Die In Crossing Accident.

Helen, 16, and Betty, 14, suffered lacerations. Betty also received a broken left arm.

State patrolmen said that Parsons told them he was unable to stop and that their examination of the tires on his car revealed that they were worn smooth.

Benjamin died yesterday at Bucyrus city hospital of a fractured skull and a fractured left elbow. Workers were forced to cut away parts of his car with an acetylene torch to free him from its wreckage. His auto crashed into a tree after skidding off the road.

Mrs. Benjamin is still in a critical condition. She received a fractured pelvis and a compound fracture of her right leg. Patty Lou, 10, and a month-old baby son were also injured. Patty Lou suffered a fractured pelvis while the baby received a fractured left leg

Morgan, the third person killed, died of injuries received when his car collided with a telephone truck driven by Joe Williams, Bucyrus. Williams is in Bucyrus city hospital with a fractured jaw-bone, nose and his mouth. His condition is reported fair.

Riding with Morgan were Mr. and Mrs. Leland Warner and their two children, all of Homestead. Warner, 30, received a fractured left leg and chest injuries while Mrs Warner, 29, suffered a fractured nose and severe face lacerations The children received cuts and bruises.

Also in a critical condition at the Bucyrus hospital is Mrs. Etta Rogers, 69, Bucyrus, who was struck by an automobile as she attempted to cross the street. She suffered a fractured skull and fractured right leg. C. W. Warnock, Bucyrus, driver of the car, told police the car skidded as it approached the intersection.

Slippery streets caused at least 16 accidents in Mansfield but no injuries were reported.

Ronald Vogel, 6, of 669 McPherson street, suffered a scalp wound yesterday when he tumbled through the door of his parents' auto when it opened while the car was moving on U. S. Route 30-S.

Charles Stoops, 69, Mansfield R. D 1, was treated for scalp lacerations after being struck by an automobile while he was walking north yesterday morning on State Route 39.

Property damage was caused in three collisions on county roads but no persons were injured.

Three separate grade crossing crashes took a toll of nine lives while collisions were responsible for the other 16 already recorded.

Three persons were killed when the Pennsylvania railroad flyer, The Spirit of St. Louis, struck their stalled automobile at a crossing near Selma. The dead were identified as J. W. Ashba, his wife, Margaret, and [illegible] Hildebrand, all about 60, of Springfield.

Three residents of Dayton died when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a northbound Baltimore and Ohio passenger train two miles south of Miamisburg. They were Edward E. Marshall, 64; his wife, Amanda, 70; and Mrs. Leola Marie Walker, 40.

At Elliston, 18 miles southeast of Toledo, three persons died when a New York Central passenger train struck their automobile. They were Virgil Borton, 27, and his wife, Marie, of Toledo; and Clifford Stiller, 27, of Elliston.

NURSE HELD IN BABY'S DEATH

Constant Crying In Infant Ward Snapped Her Mind, Authorities Believe.

Miss Banker rushed into the nursery and found Elizabeth Fantagone, four days old, in an unnatural sleep that her experienced eye recognized as coma. She applied artificial respiration and kept it alive. Then it was discovered that tiny Judith Valle was stiff and cold in her crib. Artificial respiration was useless; life had been ended only 20 hours after it began.

Mrs. Epstein, wandering through the hospital, her eyes rolling, her gait jerky, arrived in the nurses' dormitory. Nurse Mary Lynn heard her muttering ". . . drops . . . drops."

Mrs. Epstein's story to police was incoherent and contradictory, though in rational moments she repeated over and over, "my mind snapped . . . my mind snapped."

Casto Valle, a salesman, and his wife had a baby 11 years ago that died soon after birth. They have longed for a baby to take its place, and Judith was born only to die at the hands of her nurse 20 hours later. Valle was overwrought. A detective tried to restrain his grief and Valle inadvertently knocked over a bottle of ink that splashed over the detective's new overcoat.

Mrs. Epstein was born in Nebraska and is 32 years old.

MANSFIELDERS ON 'WAR TIME'

City Yawns But Gets To Work In Darkness With Minimum of Confusion.

Trains moved up to the new time and at the Pennsylvania station two passengers arrived an hour early for their train which, they agreed, was better than getting there an hour late.

Bus officials, hotels, and the hospital reported no trouble changing to the new war time. City and county officials and employes were on the job at the usual opening time.

Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer gave the time change a touch of comedy by arriving at the courthouse at 8 a. m. clad in a long white nightshirt and house slippers and carrying a candle.

"The sun hadn't come up yet and it was pretty dark when I entered the courthouse corridor," Judge Cramer commented.

He explained that the cold weather forced him to wear the nightshirt over his suit and park his car close to the courthouse so the wind wouldn't blow out his candle enroute.

The big clocks atop the courthouse and News-Journal building were set ahead last night as were most of them in buildings downtown. Workers scurried about changing the few timepieces that still showed the old time this morning.

SUB TOLL RISES

Crew of 37 Saved as 8,000-Ton Tanker Is Sunk.

LEWES, Del. — (AP) — Survivors of the American tanker China Arrow expressed the belief today their ship was sunk by the same Axis submarine which destroyed two other American vessels off the Atlantic Coast within the preceding 36 hours.

The Socony-Vacuum Oil company's 8,403-ton China Arrow—21st victim of the underseas wolf pack — was torpedoed, shelled and set afire 100 miles off the coast Thursday morning, the navy department announced. Her entire crew of 37 was saved.

The China Arrow's sister ship, India Arrow, was sunk Wednesday night and the freighter San Gil went down at midnight Tuesday—both in waters not far from the scene of the latest sinking.

In all three attacks, the raider refrained from shelling the sinking ships until their crews had left in lifeboats.

DEATH TAKES MRS. HUNT, 81

Widow Succumbs at Home of Daughter; Rites Wednesday.

Mrs. Clarissa Ella Hunt, 81, widow of William Hunt, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Lorentz, 182 Arthur avenue, after a lingering illness.

Robinson summoned the board members to Mansfield, and a general exodus from the town began.

When Millard arrived at the school this morning, the pupils massed before the doors and advised him that they weren't going to let him in.

Comments of spokesmen for the pupils ran like this:

"We won't go to classes until Weekley comes back."

"We'll never go to classes under Millard."

"If there's going to be a trial, we want a fair trial."

Weekley's suspension was voted by the board Thursday night, charging him with "unbecoming conduct," the details of which were not revealed. Friday morning some 250 pupils refused to attend classes and school was dismissed.

Weekley has until Feb. 16 to make his reply to the board's charges. He has steadfastly maintained that he has done nothing to warrant his suspension and has indicated that he will fight to retain his position.

Millard was named acting superintendent at a special board meeting here Saturday night.

GREATEST NAZI ENGINEER DEAD

State Funeral Planned for Todt, Builder of Siegfried Line.

BERLIN—(By Official German Wireless)—(INS)—Adolf Hitler today was without the services of his greatest "organizing genius" as Germany prepared a state funeral for Dr. Fritz Todt, the great engineer who built the Siegfried line, and who laid out and constructed the remarkable system of military roads throughout the Reich.

An official announcement said Dr. Todt had been killed "in an airplane accident while carrying out military duties to the east."

While there have been no reports of friction between Dr. Todt and Hitler, it was considered a possibility that the fuehrer may have lost confidence in his engineering genius when the Todt defense lines failed to hold the Soviet counter-offensive.

Evacuate Civilians From Rangoon

RANGOON, Burma — (UP) — Non-essential civilians were leaving Burma's capital today because of heavy Japanese air raids but the Japanese were still stalled 100 miles away.

The evacuation was urged by Gov. Hugh Dorman Smith who said Rangoon was vulnerable to bombings "despite the magnificent defense put up by the AVG (American Volunteer Group), the RAF and our anti-aircraft gunners."

The Japanese were stalled on the east side of the Salween river for the ninth day, possibly still hoping to knock out Burma's air defenses before attempting a major drive to bridge the swiftly flowing stream and strike at the Burma road.

Their last attempts to inflict a "knock-out" blow Saturday night resulted in ineffectual bombing of an airdrome north of Rangoon. In a day raid Sunday fighter planes fled before Australian fliers. They lost two to four planes—the defenders none.

Previously their efforts to blast the American and British airmen from the skies ended in dismal defeats.

Jap Planes Extend Raids To Batavia

BATAVIA — (UP) — Japanese planes extended their attacks to the region of Batavia, capital of the Dutch Indies, for the first time today, attacking two Dutch airdromes and inflicting "some damage."

An official communique reported that the main Japanese attack on Batavia was directed against the Kemajoran and Tjilitan airfields about five miles outside Batavia.

The planes sought to attack Tandjong Priok, the harbor for Batavia, but were driven off by heavy anti-aircraft fire.

One and possibly two of the Japanese planes were shot down. Eleven civilians were wounded, two seriously.

The Japanese raid was carried out by six to eight fighters of the navy zero type which flew over the airfields, machine gunning planes on the ground. Some planes were damaged, including two passenger craft.

Dutch fighters went into the air and engaged the attackers which presumably were based on a Japanese aircraft carrier somewhere off the Java coast.

VOWS EXCHANGED SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Miss Beth Critchfield Becomes Bride of C. Raymond McNutt, of Cincinnati, In Church Ceremony; Reception Follows.

PALMS, ferns, pink and white gladioli and white tapers in candelabra formed the background for the wedding of Miss Beth Critchfield and C. Raymond McNutt, both of Cincinnati, in the Central Methodist church at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. The couple exchanged vows before Dr. H. L. Bethel. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Chester G. Critchfield, 120 Rae avenue. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. McNutt, of Kingsville.

Nuptial music played by Miss Elizabeth Burneson, organist, consisted of "Kammenoi-ostrow," by Rubenstein, and "Liebestraum," by Liszt. Mr. Critchfield gave his daughter in marriage. Maid of honor was Miss Laone R. Critchfield, of Cincinnati, sister of the bride. Robert McNutt, of Marion, twin brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Guests were shown to their places by the bride's uncle, Vernon E. Critchfield, of Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A navy blue dress was worn with a navy blue and white hat by Mrs. McNutt. Her attendant was attired in a beige dress with luggage tan accessories. Bride's cortage was of white camellias and sweetheart roses and that of Miss Critchfield consisted of Talisman roses and violets. Mrs. Critchfield appeared at her daughter's wedding in a black dress. She had a corsage of red carnations.

Reception for 30 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents immediately after the ceremony. The table was decorated with pink and white snapdragons and white candles.

When Mr. and Mrs. McNutt left for a wedding trip through the south, Mrs. McNutt was attired in a fuchsia wool dress and Persian lamb coat and hat. Upon their return to Ohio, they will reside at 2535 Burnet avenue in Cincinnati.

Mrs. McNutt attended the Wooster college conservatory of music, Ashland college and received a degree in dental hygiene from Northwestern university dental school. She is dental hygienist at the army post, Fort Knox, Ky. Mr. McNutt is a graduate of Miami university, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and of the University of Michigan, where the degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon him. He is mathematics instructor at the Walnut Hills college preparatory school in Cincinnati.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Miss Thelma Slack and Mrs. Slack, of Ashland, and Mr. and Mrs Vernon E Critchfield, of Ft. Wayne.

ESTHER CLASS.

Members of the Esther Class of the Mayflower Congregational church will hold a meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Adams, Dudley avenue. Mrs. Lawrence Them will serve as associate hostess.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

FROM THE large square envelope which Olina had given me, I pulled out a square piece of parchment-like paper on which had been painted a sort of landscape in water colors I glanced at it, puzzled as Olina had been, and then, before scanning it further, detached the written note attached to the painting with a metal clip.

"To the Princess Olina," it began "To me you will always be a princess, even though you are now compelled to play in public for pay."

"Isn't that delicious?" she asked. "I thought you'd like that. Why don't you read it aloud, so Steve can get it too?"

All Pre-arranged.

An instinctive reluctance to obey her suggestion rose from somewhere deep within me. I knew, of course, that courtesy demanded he see the fan letter she had brought to me—the ostensible and pre-arranged reason for her coming to my apartment to meet Steve, as if by accident But I felt a queer and strong aversion to his knowing anything about it.

'I'll pass it over to him as soon as I read it to myself" I told her. "Sorry Steve but if I read it aloud first I wouldn't have the slightest idea of what was in it."

"Of course," he said courteously

I went back to the letter which intrigued me strangely from the first sentence

'I am a lonely man far from home," the letter went on "You and your father and mother once visited my country and I saw you pass by as I stood in the street The vision of your beauty has been with me ever since For a long time I did not know where you were. I heard of your exile, but I did not know how you had fared.

Saw Olina in a Play.

"Then," the strange letter went on, "I went to the play one night and saw you, and heard you play. I had found you, but my heart ached to see you there, when you should be in your rightful place.

"I never shall try to see you, never trouble you. But I want you to know that there is one true heart which beats for you. If you ever are in trouble or danger, where a strong arm and a stout heart can serve you, put a personal in the New York—" and he named the paper.

"Under another cover I am sending you the personal which will bring me to you within twenty-four hours You may show this letter to someone. That is all right. But I do not wish you to show the personal to anyone, unless it is someone in the service of the United States government.

"Time is heavy on my hands, and I am employing it in painting a little picture, which I hope will please you. Do not dismiss it with a glance I put much thought and considerable ingenuity, into it. I think you will like it.

"Your unknown friend and sincere admirer. ZYX"

I read the queer epistle through a second time, for I felt instinctively that running between its lines was a message of great importance, if we could but interpret it. Then I managed another laugh, which I hoped registered careless amusement, and handed the letter over to Steve.

"I can imagine what Mary's comment on this would be," I said and Olina laughed

'So can I," she said. "She'd read it give a little whistle, then throw it down with an emphatic declaration 'The man's a nut, and a cracked one at that Stay clear of him Lina'"

Steve Redfield looked up from the note which he was scanning intently, and made the comment which I had feared

'I'm not so sure" he said. 'There's more to this than meets the eye It's the queerest thing I ever saw, but it challenges me I think there's a message for you hidden in it Do you mind if I take it over to my room and study it when I have more time? I'll return it to you safely"

Women Of Moose Honored Sunday At Conference

Members of the local chapter of the Women of the Moose motored to Bucyrus Sunday to attend a state conference meeting at which they were the honored chapter. Miss Ruth Roesch, senior regent of the local group, conducted the meeting. Six honored guests were Mrs Irma Winninger, conference leader of Bucyrus, Mrs. Ada Newman, conference secretary, of Galion, Mrs. Eunice Sherman, associate regent of the college of regents of Norwood, Dr. Bauer, senior regent of Barberton, and Mrs. Esther Taylor national vice president of the alumni association.

During the business session which chapters from 12 cities in this district attended talks were given on "Posture classes in every chapter for National Defense." Speakers were Mrs. Mabel Keller of this city, Mrs. Grace Schilinger of Galion, Mrs. Esther Taylor of Barberton and Mrs. Greenstein of Bucyrus. At a meeting for recorders and auditors, Dr. Bauer was the guest speaker. She gave an interesting talk on "Membership Applications." Dinner was served by Bucyrus lodge members.

Open initiation of five candidates was held with the local chapter in charge. A musical program was given during the evening by the Barberton Glee club, Miss Estella Arras, soloist of this city, the Galion quartet and Mrs. Blackburn, pianist of Marion. During the evening Mansfield escorts presented Miss Roesch with a beautiful bouquet of gladioli, a gift of Mrs. Winninger. Short talks were given by Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Sherman and the senior regents of all lodges attending the conference. Each honored guest was presented with a gift. When the Mansfield chapter of the Women of the Moose holds its initiation on the Ritual committee chapter night program on Feb. 18, Bucyrus chapter members will be in charge. Mrs. Mabel Keller is chairman of the committee.

Nature Club Has "Night Of Nonsense"

"Night of Nonsense" was the theme of the recent meeting of the Mansfield Nature club, which was held at North Lake park pavilion. Members were entertained by the "W.N.U.T.S." radio station. First on the program was the "Ku Ko Hour," which featured imitations of the owl, cow, rooster, duck and dog singing "barnyard renditions."

Due to the seriousness of world conditions, the routine program was interrupted to present information on "How Not to Act in an Air Raid." Next was the "Kids of Quiz Hour," conducted by the "Professor." Concluding portion of the program was devoted to "Truth or Consequences."

Buffet luncheon was served with the following committee in charge: the Misses Mary Stofer, Dorothy Curtiss, Mary Henry, Josephine McFarland and Marian Snyder.

The club will have a hike on Saturday, Feb. 21. Members are to meet at North Lake park at 1:30 p. m.

Women's Club Hostess Resigns

Because of ill health, Mrs. C. F. Abbott has resigned as house secretary of the Women's Club, a position she has held for approximately 15 years. Mrs. Abbott left Sunday for Tacoma, Wash., where she will make her home with her sister-in-law.

Miss Fern Fergus, of Troy, is the new secretary. She served as cafeteria director for the Y. W. C. A. at Massillon for 12 years and last winter was assistant dietician at the Miami Battle Creek Sanitarium in Miami, Fla.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, February 10.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE LUNAR transits ruling on this day point to harmonious and profitable relations in all contacts and interests of life, excepting possibly in connection with the public, groups or social welfare bodies where there is need of tact and diplomacy rather than forced issues. Otherwise there should be encouragement for all manner of satisfactory fulfillments in which personality, efficiency, charm and graciousness should be brought to bear, even on very ambitious objectives. But shun extravagance and the squandering of substance, whether financial, emotional or of the energies Travel, change and writings flourish and the young are especially favored.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a splendid year for accomplishments of high aims and aspirations, whether these be financial, business, social, cultural, sentimental or aims for power and prestige. In all such quests the personal appeal is a strange factor for attaining results, with finesse, grace, charm or other methods rather than force. But this might be overdone through extravagance of the funds—a sort of indulgence or excess—of the energies or emotions as well as more sordid stresses. There should be gain through travel, change, or intellectual expression.

A child born on this day should be efficient, ambitious, with both business as well as personal appeal and powers of broad scope. It will be benevolent, hospitable, ambitious but likely to overstep itself by extravagance and overacting.

B. And P. W. Club Has Breakfast At Hotel Sunday

Annual "Emblem Breakfast" of the Mansfield Business and Professional Women's club was held Sunday morning at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Miss Martha Wetz, member of the Shelby club, was a guest. The breakfast was served at tables which were arranged in the shape of an "E." Attractive decorations consisted of iris and chrysanthemums and blue and gold candles, carrying out the club colors.

Miss Bernice Brewer, program chairman, was assisted by Mrs. Falsom Teeter, the Misses Estella Arras, Loretta Zeller and Florence Young. Hospitality committee was comprised of Misses Rachel Denzler, Sue Kozik and Lillian Wigton.

A short business session was conducted by the president, Miss Mary Gruber. The club's representative in the Mansfield Dental Clinic reported on activities and future plans. Announcement was made of the musical tea to be sponsored by the glee club on Sunday, Mar. 1, at the First Presbyterian church. Miss Mabel Zehner, organist, will be guest artist.

Miss Marie Weil, March program chairman, urged all members to remember the 18th anniversary of the club's establishment. A dinner will be held in March Program will be presented by Mrs. Ross Cherry, of Sandusky.

Sunday's program was opened with group singing of the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." Rev. Martin W. Wappner was introduced by Miss Brewer. Rev. Wappner brought an inspiring message to the club, stressing the importance of the individual in society, in the value of the individual in molding others, and the examples set by the individual through habits and little deeds of kindness. He urged right thinking and not just conformity with the popular movement at the time.

"Do not conform, but be transformed," Rev. Wappner urged.

Nancy Pottinger and Eirene Day were welcomed into the club. Miss Marjorie Higl, membership chairman, and Miss Gruber, conducted initiation service for all new members of this year. Meeting closed with the emblem benediction song.

MISS MARY MILLER WEDS FRANK R. BETZ

Formal Service Performed Sunday At 3:30 O'clock Before Altar of First Lutheran Church By Rev. Grover E. Swoyer.

BEFORE the altar of the First Lutheran church Sunday at 3:30 p. m. Miss Mary Elizabeth Miller, daughter of William C. Miller, 11 Blanche street, exchanged nuptial vows with Robert Frank Betz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Betz, 347 Lexington avenue. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer officiated at the ceremony which was performed before an altar decorated with palms, ferns, beauty baskets of white gladioli and two seven branch candelabra.

For her wedding the bride wore a gown of cream-colored faille silk wth eyelet embroidery trimming the sweetheart neckline and long sleeves. The tight fitting waistline and full skirt extended into a train. Her full length net veil, which was worn virgin style, was attached to a coronet of gladioli and gardenias. She carried an arm bouquet of the same kind of flowers. Miss Miller was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Juanita Da Lee Miller, maid-of-honor, and Mrs. William Wood Mosey, matron-of-honor, both wore pale pink corded silk taffeta gowns fashioned with sweetheart necklines, leg-o-mutton sleeves and full skirts which fell into trains. On their heads they wore white lace bonnets tied with bows of pink velvet. They each wore a strand of pearls and carried arm bouquets of Rubrum lilies and Buddleia The pearls were gifts of the bride who is the sister of Miss Miller and Mrs. Mosey.

Best man was Raymond W. Betz, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Robert H. Beard, John H. Carew, Frank R. Betz, brother of the bridegroom, and William W. Mosey, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Mrs. Clayson Bell, organist, played nuptial music preceding and during the ceremony. Some of her selections were "Serenade" by Drigo; "Indian Love Call," by Friml; "Estrellita" by Tonce; "Ave Maria" by Schubert; "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" by Seitz and the traditional wedding marches. During the ceremony she played "Love's Greeting" by Elgar.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for 100 guests at the Colonial Guest House. Luncheon was served buffet style from a long table attractively decorated with white gladioli and centered with the bouquets of Miss Miller and Mrs. Mosey. The couple is now on a wedding trip to New York City. For traveling Mrs. Betz wore a black and white wool dressmaker suit with red and black accessories and a shoulder corsage of gardenias. After Feb. 15 they will be at home at 705 Overlook road.

Mrs. Betz was graduated from Mansfield senior high school and is employed at the Mansfield Telephone company. She is a member of Chi Sigma National Sorority. Mr. Betz was also graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and is affiliated with the Frank Betz Contracting company. Out-of-town guests in attendance at the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. E. Wright and son, Mrs. Joseph Crow and son and Miss Marie Milhoff of Akron; Mrs. John Coggins of Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. R R. Keyes, and Mrs. Kenneth Long and daughter of Fredericktown.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Clipping from the Booster, camp paper of Napier Field, Dothan, Ala.:

"The star athlete of Squadron "A," Hoppy Spear, went out of his way to demonstrate the old one about his you-know-what down. During inspection he was strolling around his room, half in and half out, when surprised by the inspecting officer.

"His coming to attention only served to drape his y-k-w very tastefully around his ankles to the necessarily restrained amusement of his roommates. He is now trying to find out what is cadet etiquette when pants are at half mast."

Hoppy Spear? Why, that's Mansfield's Bob Spear, the old DePauw and News-Journal tennis champion.

Paul Cameron, former Johnny Appleseed coach sent the clipping, with this comment:

"There has been little news of interest until this last week when a group of American boys moved in. We have two Mansfield boys here now Spear and Reader. They have been over to my office to talk over days of the dim DARK past, such as Oct. 28 (Simpson-Appleseed football game) and some of the BRIGHT sides of Mansfield athletics, such as the Tyger-Tiger game and the great Mansfield relays.

* * *

"It seems that above all else, the Relays have put Mansfield on the map. That should make Meandering Harry feel good. P. S. I'm betting on good old Appleseed to break the jinx and beat Simpson the 25th."

Yes sir, the air corps may let Bob Spear's y-k-w down, but doesn't let the folks back home down, without parachutes.

And thanks to Paul Cameron for writing today's column. It was in need of aid from the air corps on this oh-so-early-in-the-morning war time. With or without parachute, the air corps has contrived to let me down easy.

Cameron's address, in case some of his old Mansfield friends would care to write, is:

C. Paul Cameron,
Director of Physical Training,
Air Corps Advanced Flying School

Women Pick Canton For Alley Tourney

LIMA—(U.P.)—The state women's bowling association today awarded their 1943 tourney to the city of Canton.

Canton team contestants yesterday took top honors in Class A and B competition in the women's bowling tournament and a Canton woman led the singles scoring.

These Canton teams took Class A honors in the following order: Deluxe Recreation 2356, Casco company 2343, and Melo Cleaners 2299.

* * *

Hoover Sweepers, also of Canton, was first in Class B competition with 2322.

Lima Elks Alleys with 1981 points took second place in Class C and Lima Snowflake Laundry with 1855 was second in Class D. Marcella Wagner of Canton rolled 538 for the singles lead.

GIL DODDS GIVES GREG RICE SCARE

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Gilbert Dodds, formerly of Ashland college and now wearing the colors of the Boston A. A., gave Greg Rice, former Notre Dame distance ace, a scare in the two-mile race at the Millrose games Saturday night.

Dodds held the lead until the last lap when Rice overtook him to win by only four yards. Rice was clocked in 8:52.8, only 1.7 seconds slower than his own world record. Dodd finished second in 8:53.7.

BUILDS ALLEY

Urge Fish Tag Price Boost

Ohio Sportsmen's League Wants Price Doubled.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The League of Ohio sportsmen urged today that the cost of fishing licenses will be increased to $1, double the present price, to provide additional revenue for improving fishing grounds throughout the state.

The increase was recommended in resolutions adopted at closing sessions of the league's 26th annual convention yesterday.

Richard Lindeman, Delphos attorney, was elected president. Dr. W. J. Ogden of Hayesville and Charles R. Color of Cincinnati were elected vice president, and Sam Weirick of Lancaster was renamed treasurer. Lindeman suggested M. V. Loudenbeck of Sidney.

* * *

The executive committee will act Feb. 28 on the appointive position of secretary now held by Tudor Wilson of Columbus.

League members by resolution pledged full support "to the president of the United States and the governor of Ohio in any capacity "in which we may serve" during the war but cautioned against "exploitation of our natural resources in the name of national defense."

* * *

Other resolutions urged: That the state forestry division take over tax delinquent land (in cooperation with local governments) for timber tracts; erection of some 25 watch towers for additional fire protection of about 1,600,000 acres of potential timber land in eastern and southeastern Ohio; continued study of the state's underground water shortages, and state appropriation of funds to purchase land for game sanctuaries in northwestern Ohio.

Indiana Trys To Stop Illini

Hoosiers Have Chance of Breaking Win Streak.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Tonight it will be Indiana's turn to try to stop Illinois in the Big Ten basketball race.

Seven other conference teams have tried and failed. The only teams the Illini have not faced so far are the Hoosiers and Purdue—and Illinois will not get around to meeting the Boilermakers until March 7.

Northwestern was the Illini's latest victim, losing a 41-33 decision Saturday night.

* * *

As the Wildcats dropped into their fourth defeat, so did Iowa. The Hawkeyes bowed to Purdue, 45-44, and the field of hopefuls—teams with only three defeats and still nursing ideas of overtaking the unbeaten Illini—was reduced to four: Minnesota, Indiana, Wisconsin and Purdue.

* * *

The Gophers, holding tight in second place, downed Ohio State by a wide margin of 63-33, and the eighth-place Buckeyes were plunged perilously near the ninth-place Michigan Wolverines.

Michigan was idle Saturday night, as were Chicago and Indiana. Wisconsin dropped a non-league 47-42 decision to Great Lakes.

In addition to the Illinois-Indiana clash tonight at Bloomington, Ohio State will be at Iowa, Northwestern at Purdue and Wisconsin at Chicago. Saturday Illinois will be host to Michigan, Purdue will play at Minnesota, Iowa will be at Northwestern, Ohio State will meet Wisconsin at Madison and Chicago will go to Indiana.

DETROIT EAGLES ENTER PRO BASKETBALL MEET

CHICAGO—(INS)—The Detroit Eagles, winners of the world pro basketball championship in Chicago last March, were accepted by the tournament committee today as the first entry for the 1942 meet which will be held in Chicago March 7 to 11.

The defending champions will face a field of 15 other teams, as a limit of 16 entries has been decided upon. Applications for entry in the tournament have been received from 33 teams in 30 states.

Barron Cops Western Open

Akron Pro Edged From Money In Final Round.

By ROBERT MYERS

PHOENIX, Ariz. —(AP)— The name of Herman Barron, a newcomer to golf fame was added today to a list of illustrious past winners of the 42-year-old Western open championship.

To a roll of honor that includes such stars of the game as Hagen, Sarazen, Long Jim Barnes, MacDonald Smith and Chick Evans, the name of this 32-year-old White Plains, N. Y., professional was placed after a sparkling triumph in the tournament finals yesterday.

Leaving the better known pros in an also-ran scramble, Barron wound up his 72-hole clumb to the top with rounds of 69-69-71-67—276, which was two strokes better than his nearest competitor, Henry Card of Oklahoma City.

A veteran of 13 years on the professional tournament circuit, yet never a winner before, Barran started out on the final 36 holes four strokes behind the leader, Herman Keiser of Akron, another dark horse.

At the 54-hole mark Barron was still three down behind a pace setting trio that included Picard, Keiser and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va. He came on with a rush, as they faded under last round pressure.

Second place and $700 went to Henry Picard, of Oklahoma City, who finished two strokes behind Barron, with 278.

Lanky E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Chicago, finished third with 279 and final rounds of 72-70, and Keiser, helping himself to 72 and 74, was one shot back. Lawson Little made a belated last day challenge, with 69-73 for 281.

* * *

Barron won $1,000, his first important money in competition. Thirty-two years old, he's been a professional for 17 years in his native New York.

Ben Hogan, who leads the professional gold rush with $4,973 in the five tournaments played since Jan. 1, had 288.

The pros go from here to San Antonio for the Texas open Feb. 13-15.

Eagles Win 2-1 N.C.O. Loop Match

Avalon Nite club took all three games from Liederkranz in an N. C. O. league bowling match at Colony alleys yesterday, while Mansfield Eagles scored a 2-1 victory over the Fostoria Red Flares.

Nechvatal hit a 623 total and Schneider 605 for Avalon, Henry Michaels got 601 for Leiderkranz, and Jim Orr rolled 628 for the Eagles.

'Big Schnoz' Glad To Leave Giles

OAKLAND, Cal. —(INS)— Ernie Lombardi, veteran first string catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, was recovering today from the shock of being traded to the lowly Boston Braves.

"Not Boston!" exclaimed "Big Schnoz" when advised of the deal.

"I'm glad to get away from Cincinnati. But don't get me wrong. So far as the Cincinnati fans are concerned I'm sorry to go. They've been swell. But I can't say the same for Warren Giles, the Cincinnati club's general manager.

"We never did get along. The guy never paid me enough. I hope to get a better shake in Boston.

"I know I had a bad year last season. But I wasn't myself. In the first place I had a bad ankle. And my back bothered me too. But I'm okay now and I'll show Giles he was a dunce to let me go."

Miller Bowlers Win Two Tilts

Jake Miller bowlers won two out of three matches yesterday at Colony alleys, the men splitting even with the J. & H. Grill of Massillon, and the girls winning from the Dominion girls.

Massillon won the No. 1 match by 68 pins, and the Eastsiders took the No. 2 match by 231 pins. Jake Miller girls won by 361 pins.

Reds' Fans Try To Picture Team Without Lombardi

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Joe Fan tried today to picture his Cincinnati Reds without Ernesto Natali Lombardi.

For Ernie—Who in 10 years as the Redlegs' regular catcher became as much a part of Crosley field as home plate, is now a Boston Brave and won't start spring training at Tampa a week from Friday with the Redleg batteries.

The Reds exchanged Lombardi Saturday night for two Boston players and announced Rollie Hemsley, bought from the Cleveland Indians in December, would take Ernie's place behind the plate.

* * *

One of the Braves acquired is to be named by May 15, the other by June 15 General Manager Warren C. Giles of the Reds said both probably would be farmed to minor league clubs this season. Giles said no cash was involved, but John Quinn, Braves' secretary, said a specified sum would be paid for Lombardi if the clubs couldn't agree on Brave exchanges.

* * *

Lombardi avoided reporters at his Oakland, Calif., home. He knew something was in the wind when his annual contract didn't arrive. Relatives of the big bachelor said, however, that baseball is Lombardi's game and regardless of his uniform he will play it with all he's got.

* * *

The big Italian who'll be 34 before this season opens was the "dean" of the Redleg roster in service. A March trade in 1932 brought him and two other Brooklyn Dodgers here for a trio of Redlegs.

With the Reds he caught from 107 to 132 games each year and batted above .300 in all but three of the 10 seasons. In 1938 he won the National league batting championship (.342) and most valuable player award.

Last year, his batting average had plummeted to .267, quite a slump for a slugger whose average for more than 1,250 National loop games is .310.

* * *

And "Big Schnoz" heard the "wolves" in the stands here for the first time.

Well, lumbering Lom's gone now, and Pitcher Paul Derringer is the "dean."

Joe Fan's not sure Giles and Manager Bill McKechnie are right in picking Hemsley as a better catcher. He will wait and see.

Hershey Holds Top Hockey Loop Spot

(By United Press)

The Hershey Bears beat off a last-minute attack by the Providence Reds to hold a six-point lead in the Western division of the American Hockey league today.

Within the last six minutes the Reds tallied three times but were unable to overcome Hershey's early lead and the Bears carried off a 5-4 victory.

The Indianapolis Capitals moved into a second place tie with Cleveland in the Western division by defeating the New Haven Eagles, 5-2.

* * *

The Buffalo Bisons also put on a last-minute drive to upset the last-place Pittsburgh Hornets, 8-5.

In the only other league game the Washington Lions blanked Cleveland, 2-0.

DICKER ON SALARY

BROOKLYN—(AP)—Whitlow Wyatt, ace pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, conferred for two hours with President Larry MacPhail and failed to come to an agreement on terms for 1942. It was believed that Wyatt was paid about $11,000 last season and that he asked for $20,000 in 1942.

Tygers Meet Ashland Five

Two Teams Are Tied In 30-Year-Old Rivalry.

Mansfield high cagers renew a 30-year-old rivalry with Ashland tomorrow night at senior high gym in a game which will give one of the two teams a temporary advantage of one victory in the long series of basketball clashes. The series now stands even up in the matter of victories and defeats.

* * *

Ashland has lost only three games this season, and one was to the Tygers on the A's court when Mansfield staged a great last-half rally after getting away to a poor start.

* * *

Mansfield broke an old jinx when the Tygers won at Ashland, and now Coach Vern Hoffman's hoopsters hope to continue a jinx on Ashland by taking the home game tomorrow night. In the past it's been the custom for each team to win on its home court.

Last Friday night Ashland held Shelby to five buckets while taking an N. C. O. league victory 42-28 as the Whippets scored 18 free points in 22 chances to stay in the ball game.

Bartley and Semple led the Ashland attack with nine points each, while Prentice was right behind with eight, and Stentz got seven.

Ashland made 21 per cent of its shots from the floor, and will need to keep up that pace against Mansfield if the Tygers are anywhere near as hot as they were against Mt. Vernon Saturday night.

* * *

Reserve teams of the two schools will tangle in a preliminary tilt at 7 o'clock.

SLATES PENN RELAYS IN SPITE OF WAR CURB

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)—War or no war, the Penn relays will be held as usual at Franklin Field on April 24-25 this year, it was announced today by Athletic Director H. Jamison Swarts.

Swarts said the world's largest track show "must go on" in line with the university's policy of "athletics as usual." Invitations have been sent to 1,035 educational institutions in every section of the country.

Claims Place On Star Roll

Cub Catcher Admits He's Good Without Urging.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—"I'll be on the National league all-star team this summer, because I'm the best catcher in the league."

Such a brash statement ordinarily would not merit much attention, but coming from 23-year-old Clyde McCullough of the Chicago Cubs, it can't be tossed off as so much balderdash.

* * *

For McCullough has been on seven all-star teams in his eight years of professional baseball, falling from the select list for the first time last season, his first under the big tent.

* * *

"I'm not just popping off when I say I'll be on the all-star team this summer," The Nashvillian declared today. "I can do everything any of the other catchers can do and do it just a little better."

They stocky, 200-pounder, who was the lone player to wallop a home run in every park around the National circuit last summer, broke into professional ranks in 1935 with Lafayette, La., of the Evangeline league at the age of 16.

He batted .265 in 125 games that year, made the all-star lineup and caught the eye of Scout Johnny Nee who bought him for the New York Yankees. The Yankees kept him on the farm four years—two at Akron, one at Binghampton, N. Y., and one at Newark and Kansas City—then sold him to the Cubs in 1940 for $30,000.

Gabby Hartnett decided McCullough needed more seasoning and shuffled him off to Buffalo where he caught 154 games—136 in a row—and again made the all-star lineup, as he had in successive years at Akron, Binghampton and Kansas City.

He got his second shot with the Cubs last spring and stuck as first-string catcher.

"I should have been on the national all-star team last year," McCullough opined seriously. "At the time it was picked my average was a little low. Still I was chosen on the rookie all-star team."

Unbeaten List Wiped Clean

Last Two Unsullied Slates Defeated Over Week-End.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's collegiate basketeers, still gasping from last week's resounding upsets which stossed standings into a turmoil, headed today into a 42-game program which offered plenty of "anything can happen" possibilities.

Capital's 48-64 loss to Denison and Muskingum's 44-34 win over Mount Union swept the last one of the undefeated teams into the "sullied" ranks, while Xavier's surprising 45-40 conquest over once-defeated Toledo kept the Rockets from taking over the top spot as the leaders fell.

* * *

Kent State and Denison take over the giant-killer role this week, and further jumbling of the standings appears probable. Kent has won nine of 16 games, and Denison only four of nine, but those two out-of-the-race quintets may have plenty to say about who wears the crown.

* * *

Wooster is out front in the state-wide race with 13 victories in 14 states, but the confident Scots must push the up-and-coming Denison team aside Saturday night to stay there. The Big Red, after losing its first four, found a scoring punch to take four of the last five, losing only to Wittenberg by two points.

* * *

Kent has the tougher chore. The Flashes meet Baldwin-Wallace tonight at Kent, and are no worse than an even choice to upset the Ohio conference leaders who have copped eight straight, one more than Wooster boasts in the league.

* * *

In a previous meeting at Berea, Baldwin-Wallace had a tough time beating Kent 33 to 32. Tuesday night Kent gets a crack at Mount Union at Alliance, and after winning three games last week with a 52-point average, the Staters will be no soft touch.

Of this weeks slate:

Monday: Ohio State at Iowa, Baldwin-Wallace at Kent State, Youngstown at Marshall.

Tuesday: Kent State at Mount Union, Wittenberg at Bowling Green, Marietta at Muskingum, Ohio Northern at Heidelberg, De Sales at Lawrence Tech, Denison at Ohio Wesleyan, Youngstown at Ohio U., Thiel at Hiram, Miami at Dayton, Wayne at Cincinnati, John Carroll at Western Reserve.

Wednesday: Otterbein at Capital, Findlay at Bluffton, Detroit Tech at Defiance, Xavier at Marshall, Detroit at Toledo.

Thursday: Kenyon at Ashland, Wilmington at Morehead, Western Reserve at Oberlin, Fenn at Kent State.

Friday: Mount Union at Marietta, Case at Baldwin-Wallace, Centre at Xavier.

Saturday: Ohio State at Wisconsin, Kent State at Muskingum, Bowling Green at Otterbein, Denison at Wooster, Heidelberg at Wittenberg, Capital at Ohio Norththern, Oberlin at Kenyon, Ohio Wesleyan at Miami, Ashland at Hiram, Cincinnati at Dayton, Bluffton at Defiance, Tiffin at Cedarville, Detroit at Western Reserve, Toledo at De Paul, Evansville at Ohio U., and Lawrence Tech at De Sales.

CONDUCT RITES FOR GALION'S CHIEF TUESDAY

Services For George Moody, Stricken Sunday, To Be at Volk Funeral Home.

By CATHERINE RORICK
(Staff Correspondent)

GALION—Funeral services for George Moody, 52, Galion police chief who died Sunday, will be held at 2:30 Tuesday at the Volk funeral home. Rev. W. N. Robertson, pastor of the First Methodist church will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

Chief Moody was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage shortly after arriving home Saturday. He was rushed to City hospital about 1 p. m. He died at 12:12 a. m. Sunday, having never regained consciousness.

Fellow officers said he was in a jovial mood during the morning hours while at the office, and hadn't complained Saturday of being ill, although he had been under the care of a physician recently. His death was a shock to Galion and vicinity.

Chief Moody who joined the Galion police force 17 years ago, was a striking figure. He was considered the tallest man in Galion. Conscientious in his work, he had served as chief since May 1, 1940, succeeding Frank Cook who resigned. His appointment was made by W. ... King, former mayor, after serving as acting chief following Cook's resignation.

Chief Moody was an ardent sportsman. Before joining the police force, he worked for the Nickel Plate railroad. He was a member of the First Methodist church, the Galion Lodge of Elks and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Born in Union county, May 28, 1889, he was a son of David and Eliza Jane (Mulligan) Moody. He was first married to Marion Kirk. The second marriage was to Hannah Ricker of Galion, who died Jan. 8, 1939. On June 24, 1940, he was married Gladys Pierce of Climax who survives.

Besides his widow, he is survived by a step-son, Murry Ricker; and two brothers, R. P. Moody, a sergeant on the Springfield, O., police force, and C. A. Moody of Marion.

A son, Robert Moody, was killed several years ago in Nicaraugua, Central America, where he was serving in the air force. A brother also preceded him in death.

CHAPTER XXIX

Linda was temporarily quieted by this remark. She felt like a naughty child that has just been punished. Then, impulsively, she pulled up a chair and sat down beside Jerry. Gregg followed suit, and Linda said gaily, "This calls for a celebration—all of us together."

"All of us?" Brenda's drawl was low and amused. "Come, Linda, you haven't forgotten one of us is missing. The most important one—I should say."

Linda colored, knowing to whom Brenda had referred. She closed her eyes for a moment. As if she could forget Steve—even for a moment. When she looked at Brenda, she was once more in control of her emotions.

"Important?" she queried, lightly. "I dare say, you speak for yourself, Brenda."

Suddenly Mary was on her feet, glowering at Linda with smouldering eyes. "Please," she said coldly. "If you must insist on joining our party, I suggest you have the decency to refrain from mentioning my brother's name. He can't possibly hold any interest for you—now."

Mary blushed, surprised by her outburst. It was so unlike her to say anything unkind that Linda realized how deeply hurt Mary was.

Philip patted Linda's hand lightly. "Please—" he said kindly, "you mustn't let Mary upset you, Linda. She isn't feeling very well, and I'm sure she didn't mean all she said."

Linda laughed merrily. "Of course, I realize Mary didn't mean it. Did you, darling?"

She meant to antagonize Mary, and did. That touch of flippancy, that indifference in her manner brought forth results.

"Yes, I meant everything I said," Mary answered coldly. "I—I hate you, Linda. I hate you!"

Following Mary's bitter words, there was a breathless silence. Linda regarded her sister-in-law in aching silence, longing to confess her love for Steve. Then, feeling Brenda's eyes turned on her triumphantly, she laughed.

"It is exciting, isn't it! And rather confusing, I'll admit, to be trading husbands and sweethearts with such abandon. Jerry, suppose you relieve the so-called situation by dancing with me?"

For a moment she was afraid that Brenda's former husband would refuse, but while Brenda and Mary stared in silence, Jerry rose, bowed gallantly, and said:

"It would be a pleasure, Linda."

In his arms, Linda closed her eyes, swaying to the slow dance rhythm, but they had scarcely moved three steps before Jerry regarded her soberly, his face almost stern.

"Why are you behaving like this, Linda?" he asked. "It isn't like you to be so artificial, so shallow."

With a tired sigh, Linda let her head rest on his broad shoulder. "I'm so tired," she whispered softly. "You're the only one who's been kind to me, Jerry. You're the only one who—who understands."

"I understand a great many things," Jerry said. "For instance, I know you're putting up a wonderful bluff because you're scared silly that Brenda will take Steve away from you. You're trying to show everyone that you don't care. Isn't that true?"

"She's already succeeded," Linda answered gravely. "I underestimated her ability, I'm afraid. I'm stepping out of the picture now—in a gay manner."

"I wish I could tell you it isn't true," he said and sighed heavily, "but unfortunately I can't. Brenda called and asked me to meet her here because she's going to Saratoga soon. Do you know what that means?"

Linda's throat constricted. "That means the racing season opens soon and now that Steve can afford to come and go, he'll be taking his racing ponies south. It means—"

"Maybe we're wrong," Jerry was hopeful. "Maybe—"

Linda shook her head wearily. With a sinking heart she realized that she had lost. It was Brenda, Steve's sweetheart, who held the winning hand.

"I want to go back," she said suddenly. "I—I have an announcement to make."

Linda watched soberly while Gregg poured sparkling wine into the goblets before each member of the silent party. A pall seemed to have fallen over the group.

There was anxiety in Jerry's eyes as they rested on Linda's white face. Brenda twisted the corner of her handkerchief nervously, and Greg's hands shook as he poured champagne, spilling the liquid on the snowy cloth.

When everyone had been served, Linda lifted her goblet. Her voice rang out clearly. "Let's drink—" she said, defiantly, "—to Steve and to me—and to our impending divorce!"

No one moved. Everybody was shocked by the news. Then Greg lifted his glass. "I'll drink to that," he said loudly, "because I've been waiting to hear those words for a long time."

With a sudden movement, Mary pushed back her chair and rose. Her face was white and stricken as she turned and left the group with Philip, her husband, following her protectively.

Only Brenda, and Greg and Jerry were left now, they were strangely silent, suddenly Linda's glass slipped from her trembling fingers to the floor. She was crying softly. "Take me away, Greg," she cried. "I want to go home!"

Riding beside Greg in his warm, enclosed car, Linda shivered, but her tears were dried now for all time. For Linda, life had ceased with the announcement of her contemplated divorce. Greg on the other hand was jubilant, making lavish plans for a future which Linda knew she would never share.

As he stopped before her apartment house, Greg caught her hands tightly. "I know you're tired, dear," he said anxiously, "so I won't keep you. But—Linda, you've made me a very happy man tonight."

Linda smiled automatically. How like Greg to imagine he had won her away from her husband. She was amazed by his egotistical qualities. It had not even dawned on him that Linda might not marry him—that she was not the simple, trusting girl he had lured away from Prairievale.

Struck by her silence, Greg said quickly, "I—I did hear right, didn't I? You are leaving Steve?"

Nodding slightly, Linda got out of the car. "Good night," she called, and without looking back, ran across the lobby to the elevator, her head whirling dizzily.

When she awakened the next morning after a restless night, Linda found Ellen waiting with a long, white envelope. Linda tore it open, one glance at the letterhead affirmed her suspicion. The letter was from Steve's lawyer and requested a 10 o'clock appointment for that very day.

Linda glanced at her clock. It was after nine, and she sprang from the bed. It was evident that Steve had wasted no time in informing his lawyers of her plans, and now that the arrangements were being made, she would not hold up proceedings.

Seated in the office of Steve's lawyer, Linda regarded the attorney soberly, as he said, "Mr. Baridon asked that I make arrangements for you to have six weeks' residence in Reno, Nevada. Is that agreeable to you?"

Linda nodded indifferently. She felt as though she was dreaming. Surely this could not be Linda Phillips replying so calmly, so indifferently to questions that were to make her marriage null and void. The panorama of her adventures in Chicago passed before her eyes. That first thrilling trip to the Windy City—Greg, big and redhaired as he courted her in Prairievale—the night she had fled from Diane's apartment to a haven of safety with Steven, and the rich contented weeks that followed—the misunderstandings, the bitter words—soon all this would be gone and she would be merely Linda Phillips once more. Greg, Brenda and Diane would be vague shadows in a make-believe world. Only Steve would be vital, and Linda would never escape from memory of the man she had loved—too late.

She was suddenly conscious that the lawyer was watching her with concerned eyes, that his voice was worried. "Are you ill?" he asked. "You're so white—"

2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

The farm situation is about as it was a few weeks ago, except we find the farm labor will be very short, women and girls may have to be trained to run power machinery. You would be amazed if we could find words to tell you the advantages of the NEW FORD TRACTOR with FERGUSON SYSTEM. Come in and we will try in our humble way to partially explain it to you.

JOHN DEERE "CC" CULTIVATOR—No end to its usefulness. Today experienced farmers are using it to eradicate profit-stealing weed pests. In addition they are using it for preparing seed beds; summer fallowing; breaking up old sod; cultivating alfalfa, orchards and certain row crops; and many other jobs. The "CC" cultivator has what it takes to rid your fields or farm of every weed, and it's more than a weed killer. "It's" tops as a tillage implement!" 6½ ft. wide, has power lift for tractor seat operation. See it on our floor. (S-10)

OCD Officials Seek Plan To Get Men In Schools After War.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Office of Civilian Defense yesterday urged the nation's colleges to adopt programs for inducing students to return to their studies after they come back from the war.

James Ward, coordinator of college activities in the OCD, said that at the end of the last war many who had left their studies for war service failed to return to their schools to complete their courses.

STOCK MARKET LEADERS DROP ON WAR NEWS

Speculators Withdraw Until Outcome of Singapore Siege Decided.

NEW YORK — The war news hardly was to the liking of Wall street today and stock market leaders generally slipped fractionally.

Lacking much support were Bethlehem Steel, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, American Telephone and Johns-Manville.

Brokers suggested speculative and investment contingents inclined to withdraw or lighten commitments pending outcome of the Singapore siege and other developments on far Pacific battle fronts. Earnings statements and business prospects were helpful in some instances but ignored in others.

Boardrooms derived mild satisfaction from the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that despite increased consuming capacity for war purposes, the supply of steel and iron was more nearly meeting requirements and delays were being reduced steadily.

Holders of merchandising shares noted reports that the recent buying rush was beginning to slacken, with indications year-to-year retail sales expansion likely would narrow appreciably before the end of the month. The approach of income tax day on March 15 was thought to have become more of a restraining influence on spenders.

WEEK'S BOND SALE $68,100

Richland countians bought $68,100 worth of defense bonds at Mansfield banks and the post-office last week to bring total purchases since last fall to approximately $1,200,000.

Sales at banks dropped off slightly from the average for January, banks reported The decrease was due to the absence of big purchases last week, bankers said. The number of small purchases held up well, however, most banks reporting more sales than during the preceding week

The Mansfield postoffice had a good week, selling $7,000 worth of bonds and defense stamps totaling $3,600.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)
